Polluted Reservoir Tax Drag, Stang Says

Unused Supply at Zena of No Value to City, Candidate Declares

A detailed explanation of reasons why he believed one of the city's reservoirs should be disposed of was presented by Frederick H. Stang, Republican candidate for mayor, in an address last night before approximately 100 members of the Ulster County Republican Women's Club.

In a speech October 20 Stang had recommended disposal of Reservoir No. 1 located near Zena. The position he took was criticized by his Democratic opponent.

He said last night that the basis of his recommendation was "an exhaustive study" made by Clinton L. Bogert Associates, consulting engineers, of New York, a firm which has been "familiar with our stystem for a long, long time."

A voluminous report was prepared by the firm at the direction of the Kingston Water Board and was submitted May 4, 1952.

Not Used in 26 Years

The report recommended, Stang said, that Reservoir No. 1, use of which was discontinued in 1926 because of pollution, be disposed of, thus producing a saving to the city in taxes paid to the Town of Woodstock, plus maintenance and insurance costs on the house and barn.

According to the report, Stang pointed out: "The Water Department paid taxes for the Town of Woodstock in the amount of $2,828.18 for Reservoirs 1 and 2 in the year 1951. These taxes were paid out of Water Department revenues." He explained that the report stated that Reservoir No. 1 was at "too low an elevation to be of any value to the water commissioners for water supply purposes."

Supervision Required

The report also made clear, he stated, that if "some unforeseen catastrophe, or peculiar combination of circumstances" caused the water supply of the city to fail, "and it should be possible to obtain a temporary source of supply from these old reservoirs, which may or may not at that time be the property of the city, they may be used only under the supervision of the State Department of Health" since, according to the report, the two reservoirs were polluted.

In the matter of Reservoir No. 2 Stang further quoted the report of the New York firm as follows:

Brady and Bailey Laud Wicks Record

Lieutenant Governor Arthur H. Wicks delivering for the first time a public address since the controversy between Senator Wicks and Governor Dewey began, spoke last evening before a packed house at Climax Grange Hall, Greene county, as dinner guest of the Coxsackie Republican Club. The meeting was attended by over 250 persons who croweded the hall to hear Wicks speak.

Lieutenant Governor Wicks, who also is majority leader of the Senate, referred to the controversy which has been going on throughout the state and reiterated the statement recently made on the radio, television and in the press, defending his visit to Joseph H. Fay while Fay was in Sing Sing prison serving time for extortion. Wicks stated he had gone there to discuss labor conditions in his senatorial district because Fay was still a power in labor circles.

Plaudits Are Given

Assemblyman William Brady of Coxsackie, who has known Senator Wicks for many years and served in the state Legislature, spoke of his 15 years association with Wicks and of the excellent job which Wicks has done during his service as senator.

Sheriff Milton O. Bailey, Republican county chairman for Greene county was present and spoke. Sheriff Bailey said he was 100 per cent behind Wicks in the present controversy. Some time ago Senator Wicks received a letter from the Greene County Republican County Committee offering its support in any way possible.

Dr. Mahlon H. Atkinson of Catskill, who introduced Wicks, referred to his 25 years of acquaintance with Senator Wicks and spoke of his outstanding career in the state Senate.

Using no prepared speech, Senator Wicks spoke of his record of service to the people of his senatorial district, which includes Greene county, and of his efforts to represent the people of the district and the entire state of New York throughout his long term in the Senate.

Electrol Plant Plans Defense Bond Drive

Beginning about November 1 all employes of Electrol Incorporated will be asked to participate in a payroll savings plan for the regular purchase of U. S. defense bonds.

The annoncement came from A. P. Adams, deputy director-in-charge of the U. S. Treasury Department, Savings Bond Division, Albany, who conferred Tuesday with the personnel department of the Grand street aircraft hydraulics plant.

During World War 2 Electrol had one of the highest employe participations in the ratio of workers of any firm in the east, Adams said of the local plant which won the Navy E award for production.

The plan, Adams said, offers a systematic savings program for workers. "My preliminary talks show much enthusiasm," Adams said. "We look forward to a successful enrollment of personnel in the plan."

Bookstein Studies Ruling on Wagner Demand for Names

Justice Promises Review of Papers at Once —Arguments Last Beyond Hour

Monticello, Oct. 28 (AP)—State Supreme Court Justice Isadore Bookstein has reserved decision on New York mayoral candidate Robert F. Wagner, Jr.'s demand that the names of those who asked parole for labor extortionist Joseph S. Fay be made public.

Bookstein has indicated his decision probably will be forthcoming by this weekend. He said he would immediately study the legal papers in the case, which developed from the New York city campaign for the election next Tuesday.

Bookstein heard arguments for more than an hour late yesterday.

Henry Epstein, counsel for a New York city taxpayer in whose name the Wagner action was brought, argued that the court should order the State Parole Board to release the names of those who recommended parole for Fay.

Evidence Only, He says

Epstein told the court:

"We are not seeking any intimate information about criminals. We are merely seeking evidence of outside influence on public officials in order to release on the public the proven enemies of society."

State Solicitor General Wendell P. Brown, representing the Parole Board, argued against the move by Wagner, Manhattan borough president and Democratic candidate for mayor.

Brown said the Parole Board was opposing the motion because it felt that it would be against public policy to divulge the names of persons sponsoring a criminal for parole. He said the policy of withholding such information has been in effect more than 75 years.

Campaign Charge

The court case grew out of a campaign charge by Wagner that a person high on the national scene who has been a close associate of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey was among those who urged a parole for Fay.

Fay, who lost his plea for parole, is in Clinton State prison at Dannemora—known in the underworld as the "Siberia" of the state prison system. The prisoner, an AFL union power, is serving a term of 7½ to 15 years for shak-

New Offer To Be Given By U.S. Aide

Dean Feels Confident Something Will Be Worked Out — Reds Insist on Russia

Panmunjom, Oct. 28 (AP)—U. S. special envoy Arthur Dean tomorrow will offer the Communists a new formula for setting up a Korean peace conference. Today he voiced confidence "we are going to work something out."

Dean's optimistic prediction followed the third session of preliminary talks to plan a Korean political conference. There was no noticeable progress at the 2-hour, 40-minute meeting.

The Communist delegate insisted in a 2,500-word statement that Russia be seated at the peace conference as a neutral.

Dean said he replied that Russia logically should attend the conference—and sit with Red China and North Korea—since Communist armies in Korea "were equipped with planes, tanks, guns and munitions sent from the Soviet Union."

Openly Supports Side

"The Soviet Union has openly supported your side by word and deed," Dean declared. "The USSR has thus played a direct role in the Korean hostilities."

The U. S. envoy, who represents the UN, also reiterated that he had no authority under the United Nations resolution approving the preliminary talks to negotiate on composition of the top level conference.

North Korean delegate Ki Sok Bok branded the UN resolution as "completely illegal."

Dean is authorized only to set a time and place, and after the meeting he was outwardly confident of eventual agreement.

"I still think these are only preliminary skirmishes and there is still a possibility we are going to work something out of these preliminary talks," he told newsmen.

Attitude of Interest

"It seems to me I can detect an attitude of interest on their part and that they really want to come to some conclusion on this matter."

Of this new offer to the Reds, Dean said:

"I plan to propose a formula to them tomorrow to see if we can't get to work on a time and place first."

Even though Dean made it clear he is unable to negotiate on who shall attend a Korean peace conference, Wednesday's session was devoted to talking of little else.

Dean said of repeated Communist assertions that Russia is a neutral:

"We cannot accept this suggestion seriously or indeed believe that you put it forward seriously. It is really very funny."

Asked to Push Programs

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—The heads of the biggest labor and farm organizations in the United States urged the government today to push ahead with reciprocal trade programs, in the interest of U. S. prosperity as well as that of friendly nations.

Robins Was 'Given' Four Partners to Share Gains

Roosevelt Official Gave Out Concession on Basis of Him 'Taking' Men

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—The man who prints programs for Roosevelt Raceway on Long Island testified today an official of the harness track "gave him" four partners who shared in 65 per cent of the program business income.

Mervin I. Robins gave his testimony at the first open hearing conducted by a special three-man commission appointed by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to investigate harness racing operations.

Robins, who also has exclusive program concessions at Yonkers Raceway and at the Wolverine trotting track at Detroit, identified the official as George Morton Levy, counsel for the Old Country Trotting Association, which owns Roosevelt Raceway.

Paid Out $313,086

Robins testified that since 1947 he paid these four persons $313,086 from Roosevelt Raceway program sales.

He estimated that Wolverine profits to be divided this year would be $5,000 to $6,000 and from Yonkers "approximately" $75,000.

Under questioning by George Trosk, commission counsel, Robins said Levy had told him he could have the program concession and added "these are your partners."

Reading then from previous private testimony, Trosk said he had asked the witness:

Q—The lawyer, George Levy, told you 'these are your partners?' . . . Did he tell you what interest they were to have in your business?"

A—Yes.

Q—Did they put up anything?

A—No.

Identified as Partners

The private testimony identified the partners as Richard Roberts, Maurice Cantor, Helen Cantor, wife of Maurice, and Jeannette Miller.

Robins, in the private testimony, added that Roberts "did quite a bit," of work that Maurice Cantor "did some," and that Mrs. Cantor and Jeannette Miller did nothing.

Robins said Cantor, an attorney, did some "legal work," adding

Rain Wets Woods Does Not Benefit Low Water Supplies

City Gets 1.18-Inch Fall Overnight — Cooper's Lake Is 11½ Feet Below Normal

An overnight rainfall of more than an inch in the Catskill mountain area, wetted down fields and woodlands that have been parched since last summer, but it was not expected to add substantially to diminishing water supplies.

Kingston reported a rainfall of 1.18 inches, the Ashokan reservoir headworks at Brown Station reported 1.06 inches, and Cooper Lake the Kingston reservoir had .93 of an inch of rain.

The local reservoir today was still 11½ feet below normal crest and New York's water system still showed the results of heavy draining during the drouth.

The Ashokan with a normal capacity of 130.48 billions of gallons, now has 68.93 billions, and the Schoharie with a capacity of 19.58 billions of gallons, has been drained down to 1.4 billions of gallons.

Of the 1.18 inches of rain which fell in Kingston only .15 of an inch was before midnight and the rest between then and 8:30 a. m. The Schoharie water shed reported only .81 of an inch of rain during the same period.

Much Heavier Than Sunday

The rainfall in all areas, however, was much heavier than that of Sunday when only .39 of an inch fell at Brown Station, and about the same at Schoharie. The total to date in the month is 3.03 at Brown Station and 3:12 at Schoharie.

The Kingston total, to date, this month is 3:03 inches, and the year's total here to date is 37.03 inches.

The average yearly total in the city is about 40 inches, and despite the long drouth the 1953 rainfall might yet reach the average. This could be because of the exceptionally heavy rains in the spring.

The rain did put new flow in area streams which had dwindled to mere ripples in many sections of the county, and it may be that the downpour, plus that of Sunday, has added a little to depleted well supplies.

Hunters Get Green Light: Woods Open

Albany, Oct. 28 (AP) — Gov. Dewey today revoked his suspension of hunting seasons and reopened to the public all the state's public and private woodlands, effective immediately.

Dewey said in a proclamation that "extensive rainfall within the last 24 hours had eliminated the critical fire hazard in the affected areas."

The bans, effective last Saturday on Dewey's order, put off the opening of the Adirondack deer season, which had been set for last Sunday, and the pheasant season, which was to have begun last Monday.

The governor's order reopening the forests and the hunting seasons followed overnight rains over most of the state. Many areas were well soaked.

To Extend Time

Simultaneously with the governor's reopening order, the Conservation Department announced that hunting seasons would be extended to compensate for the time lost.

Commissioner Perry B. Duryea said the Adirondack deer and bear season, which would have ended Nov. 30, would be extended through Dec. 4.

The pheasant season, which had been scheduled to end in some areas Oct. 29, has been extended through Nov. 2, Duryea said.

He added that "similar appropriate extensions" of small game seasons were being considered and that an order regarding them would be announced in the near future.

Living Costs Set Another Record During September

Rents, Clothing, Medical Costs Basis of Push —Is 7th Straight Increase

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—The cost of living, pushed upward mainly by higher rents, clothing costs and medical expenses, set another new record last month, the government reported today.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics announced that its consumer price index reached 115.2 in mid-September, a rise of two-tenths of 1 per cent over the record August level.

This was the seventh straight monthly increase.

The index is a composite average of retail prices paid by the American household for basic goods and services as compared with 1947-1949.

The bureau said a decline in retail food prices between August and September was not enough to offset higher prices for all other types of consumer goods and services.

Clothing Prices Up

Clothing prices were up 1 per cent over August, housing rose three-tenths of 1 per cent and medical care went up seven-tenths of 1 per cent.

Meanwhile food dropped three-tenths of 1 per cent.

The BLS noted that retail prices have risen gradually since February. The total increase in that time has been 1.6 per cent.

BLS said this has been due chiefly to increased charges for various services.

Commodity prices on the average, BLS said, have changed only slightly since the end of last year, while service rates are up about 3 per cent and rents more than 4 per cent.

A month ago, the BLS index for mid-August was reported at 115. That meant that the average American householders was paying $1.15 in mid-August for the same basic items and services he bought for an average of $1 in the 1947-49 base period.

On 1947-49 Basis

The index figures for the past few months, all given on a 1947-49 basis: March 113.6, April 113.7, May 114, June 114.5, July 114.7, August 115.

Answer Is To Quiz on Recent Hint

President Also Declares U. S. Aid to Israel Will Be Resumed; No Armed Forces Cut

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—President Eisenhower said today it would be perfectly hopeless for him to take part in a meeting with Soviet Premier Malenkov unless he knows Russia has an honest purpose for such a meeting.

He added that Russia could show such honesty in any of a hundred ways.

The President's news conference statement was in response to questions about a new Russian hint that Premier Malenkov may be ready for peace talks with the western chiefs of state.

Would Do Anything

The President also repeated what he has said before—that regardless of handicaps or inconvenience he would do anything in the world he thought would advance the cause of peace.

He qualified that again by saying there must be an indication it would produce results in good faith.

The President also told reporters:

1. United States economic aid to Israel will be resumed since Israel has agreed to suspend work on a hydro-electric power program which Arab neighbors charged would divert Jordan River water to their injury.

Delighted by Decision

Israel announced yesterday it would hold up the project while the United Nations Security Council debates the issue.

Eisenhower said he was delighted by this decision. He did not say just when aid to Israel would be resumed.

2. There exists no plan of any kind for reducing the armed forces of the United States anywhere.

3. It is conceivable that he will make some general statement urging the election of a Republican Congress next year, or even that he may give an incidental pat-on-the-back to some individual candidates. But he reiterated a previous stand that he will not go into any state or congressional district to campaign.

4. He hopes and believes cattle prices have reached the bottom and are on the way back up. In that connection, the President said only a future drouth or other crisis would justify calling a special session of Congress to deal with the farm problem.

5. When he shook hands with Paul Troast, Republican candidate for governor of New Jersey, on a recent visit to Atlantic City, he had never heard of Joseph (Joey) Fay, the imprisoned union official whose release Troast has sought in a written appeal to New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

City Will Collect Leaves on Monday

The Department of Public Works will start picking up leaves on Monday, it was announced today by Superintendent Ernest A. Steuding.

He told The Freeman that crews will begin in the Second ward and move to other areas of the city from day to day.

Steuding suggested that property owners rake the leaves to the curbs for pick-ups in wards that he will announce from time to time during the collection period.

Bureau Is Reorganized

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Interior Department today announced a reorganization of the Reclamation Bureau to shift responsibility for basic technical work to Denver and make it the bureau's main working center. Existing district offices will be abolished as such but Assistant Secretary Fred G. Aandahl and Reclamation Commissioner W. A. Dexhiemer emphasized at a news conference that project or consolidated project offices likely will be necessary to replace them in the same locations.

Boy Hurt in Car Mishap

James Whittaker, 6, of 254 First avenue, suffered a cut on the head in a traffic mishap at Hasbrouck and Delaware avenues yesterday. A police report at 4:50 p. m., said Henry G. Diehl, of 29 East Pierpont street, was driving his sedan north on Hasbrouck avenue and going into Delaware when the car struck the boy and knocked him to the pavement. Diehl took him to Kingston Hospital and Officers Harold DeGraff and William Slover notified the boy's mother.

Won't Be Available

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—It's only in the idea stage, but NBC is considering a radio program featuring former members of Arthur Godfrey's CBS troupe and possibly his sister, Kathy. But spokesmen for the most recent additions to the Godfrey alumni, Julius La Rosa and Archie Bleyer, said they would not be available.

Israel Eases Tension, Offers to Delay Project While Security Council Debates Issue in UN

United Nations, Oct. 28 (AP)—Straining tensions over the hot Palestine dispute eased a notch today after Israel suddenly offered to hold up her Jordan river hydroelectric project while the Security Council debates the issue. The move won quick commendation from both the Arabs and the United States.

The council postponed until tomorrow its Palestine hearings to give the General Assembly's 60-Nation Political Committee a chance to resume debate on American charges that the Russians ran a torture center to extort germ warfare "confessions" from captured American airmen. Britain, Nationalist China, Cuba, Australia and New Zealand were scheduled to speak at today's meeting.

UN informants said the United States was prepared to present further evidence "of a more effective nature" to support her charges. These sources said Nationalist China also was expected to submit documentary evidence on the issue.

Israel's chief UN delegate Abba Eban made the surprise offer yesterday to suspend work on diverting the waters of the Jordan as the council debated Syria's complaint that the project deprived the Arabs of water for irrigation and breached the Arab-Jewish armistice.

Lebanon's Dr. Charles Malik, sole Arab League delegate on the council, voiced gratitude for Israel's "concilitory gesture" and congratulated Eban for making it.

UN circles said the Israeli compromise gesture might serve to cool off the boiling Palestine dispute which has roused fear in Washington and London that an open Israeli-Arab break was near.

These circles said Lebanon's warm response to the offer indicated that the Arabs, too, were anxious to see things calm down.

Israel also received praise from Chief U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., who was reported to have urged Eban to make the offer in hopes it would ease tension.

The council unanimously noted the Israeli offer and asked the UN truce supervision commission to see whether it was carried out.

Eban made his announcement after UN truce supervisor, Maj. Gen. Vagn Bennike warned the council that open war threatened in Palestine unless the armistice agreements were followed to the letter.

Bennike, summoned here at U. S. behest to report on the grave situation, said the spark which might touch off the Palestine powder keg was the Kibya, Jordan, raid, labelled by the mixed armistice commission as "cold blooded murder" of more than 50 Arabs by Israeli forces.

"They indicated that tension had increased to the breaking point, either locally in a particular area, or perhaps generally between the two countries," Bennike said.

He warned that when that breaking point is reached, "temptation to resort to force may prevail over wise councils and restraint."

Bennike's report dealt with official comment on various raids by Arabs and Israelis along the 400-mile frontier.

Repatriation Head Says Five Slain by Fellow POWs

Panmunjom, Oct. 28 (AP)—The chairman of the Korean Repatriation Commission said today three Korean and Chinese prisoners have been slain by fellow POWs in a camp for anti-Communists in Korea's neutral zone.

Fifteen other prisoners have died—10 of natural causes, it was announced. Three were shot to death by Indian guards during demonstrations, one apparently committed suicide and another died of starvation, the report said.

Nine of the 18 dead were Koreans. The other nine were Chinese.

The Communists have charged bitterly in propoganda broadcasts and in letters to Indian custodial troops that South Korean and Chinese Nationalist agents in the camp tortured and murdered prisoners who wanted to return home. The Reds demanded that the murderers be found and punished.

Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimaya, Indian chairman of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission, said the Indians had not discovered the persons who committed the three murders.

Thimayya would not speculate on whether the men had been killed or tortured because they were Communists.

"We can't find out why any of the captives were killed," he said.

Thimayya said one prisoner had his upper legs crushed, another was near starvation before his death, and one had been badly beaten and his body thrown out of the compound by fellow prisoners.

The Indian general reported the murders after a meeting of the NNRC, which is deadlocked over whether to use force to make reluctant North Korean prisoners attend interviews with Communist representatives.

Thimayya said a statement on the deadlock over the use of force to get prisoners to attend explanations will be delayed for several days.

The Communist Poles and Czechs demand use of whatever force is necessary, even gunfire and bayonets, to make the North Koreans attend. The Swiss and Swedes oppose force. The Indian chairman believes the vote should be unanimous if force is to be used.

Asked to Push Programs

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—The heads of the biggest labor and farm organizations in the United States urged the government today to push ahead with reciprocal trade programs, in the interest of U. S. prosperity as well as that of friendly nations.

Robins Was 'Given' Four Partners to Share Gains

City Gets 1.18-Inch Fall Overnight — Cooper's Lake Is 11½ Feet Below Normal

An overnight rainfall of more than an inch in the Catskill mountain area, wetted down fields and woodlands that have been parched since last summer, but it was not expected to add substantially to diminishing water supplies.

Kingston reported a rainfall of 1.18 inches, the Ashokan reservoir headworks at Brown Station reported 1.06 inches, and Cooper Lake the Kingston reservoir had .93 of an inch of rain.

The local reservoir today was still 11½ feet below normal crest and New York's water system still showed the results of heavy draining during the drouth.

The Ashokan with a normal capacity of 130.48 billions of gallons, now has 68.93 billions, and the Schoharie with a capacity of 19.58 billions of gallons, has been drained down to 1.4 billions of gallons.

Of the 1.18 inches of rain which fell in Kingston only .15 of an inch was before midnight and the rest between then and 8:30 a. m. The Schoharie water shed reported only .81 of an inch of rain during the same period.

Much Heavier Than Sunday

The rainfall in all areas, however, was much heavier than that of Sunday when only .39 of an inch fell at Brown Station, and about the same at Schoharie. The total to date in the month is 3.03 at Brown Station and 3:12 at Schoharie.

The Kingston total, to date, this month is 3:03 inches, and the year's total here to date is 37.03 inches.

The average yearly total in the city is about 40 inches, and despite the long drouth the 1953 rainfall might yet reach the average. This could be because of the exceptionally heavy rains in the spring.

The rain did put new flow in area streams which had dwindled to mere ripples in many sections of the county, and it may be that the downpour, plus that of Sunday, has added a little to depleted well supplies.

Hunters Get Green Light: Woods Open

Albany, Oct. 28 (AP) — Gov. Dewey today revoked his suspension of hunting seasons and reopened to the public all the state's public and private woodlands, effective immediately.

Dewey said in a proclamation that "extensive rainfall within the last 24 hours had eliminated the critical fire hazard in the affected areas."

The bans, effective last Saturday on Dewey's order, put off the opening of the Adirondack deer season, which had been set for last Sunday, and the pheasant season, which was to have begun last Monday.

The governor's order reopening the forests and the hunting seasons followed overnight rains over most of the state. Many areas were well soaked.

To Extend Time

Simultaneously with the governor's reopening order, the Conservation Department announced that hunting seasons would be extended to compensate for the time lost.

Commissioner Perry B. Duryea said the Adirondack deer and bear season, which would have ended Nov. 30, would be extended through Dec. 4.

The pheasant season, which had been scheduled to end in some areas Oct. 29, has been extended through Nov. 2, Duryea said.

He added that "similar appropriate extensions" of small game seasons were being considered and that an order regarding them would be announced in the near future.

Roosevelt Official Gave Out Concession on Basis of Him 'Taking' Men

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—The man who prints programs for Roosevelt Raceway on Long Island testified today an official of the harness track "gave him" four partners who shared in 65 per cent of the program business income.

Mervin I. Robins gave his testimony at the first open hearing conducted by a special three-man commission appointed by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to investigate harness racing operations.

Robins, who also has exclusive program concessions at Yonkers Raceway and at the Wolverine trotting track at Detroit, identified the official as George Morton Levy, counsel for the Old Country Trotting Association, which owns Roosevelt Raceway.

Paid Out $313,086

Robins testified that since 1947 he paid these four persons $313,086 from Roosevelt Raceway program sales.

He estimated that Wolverine profits to be divided this year would be $5,000 to $6,000 and from Yonkers "approximately" $75,000.

Under questioning by George Trosk, commission counsel, Robins said Levy had told him he could have the program concession and added "these are your partners."

Reading then from previous private testimony, Trosk said he had asked the witness:

Q—The lawyer, George Levy, told you 'these are your partners?' . . . Did he tell you what interest they were to have in your business?"

A—Yes.

Q—Did they put up anything?

A—No.

Identified as Partners

The private testimony identified the partners as Richard Roberts, Maurice Cantor, Helen Cantor, wife of Maurice, and Jeannette Miller.

Robins, in the private testimony, added that Roberts "did quite a bit," of work that Maurice Cantor "did some," and that Mrs. Cantor and Jeannette Miller did nothing.

Robins said Cantor, an attorney, did some "legal work," adding

Living Costs Set Another Record During September

Rents, Clothing, Medical Costs Basis of Push —Is 7th Straight Increase

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—The cost of living, pushed upward mainly by higher rents, clothing costs and medical expenses, set another new record last month, the government reported today.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics announced that its consumer price index reached 115.2 in mid-September, a rise of two-tenths of 1 per cent over the record August level.

This was the seventh straight monthly increase.

The index is a composite average of retail prices paid by the American household for basic goods and services as compared with 1947-1949.

The bureau said a decline in retail food prices between August and September was not enough to offset higher prices for all other types of consumer goods and services.

Clothing Prices Up

Clothing prices were up 1 per cent over August, housing rose three-tenths of 1 per cent and medical care went up seven-tenths of 1 per cent.

Meanwhile food dropped three-tenths of 1 per cent.

The BLS noted that retail prices have risen gradually since February. The total increase in that time has been 1.6 per cent.

BLS said this has been due chiefly to increased charges for various services.

Commodity prices on the average, BLS said, have changed only slightly since the end of last year, while service rates are up about 3 per cent and rents more than 4 per cent.

A month ago, the BLS index for mid-August was reported at 115. That meant that the average American householders was paying $1.15 in mid-August for the same basic items and services he bought for an average of $1 in the 1947-49 base period.

On 1947-49 Basis

The index figures for the past few months, all given on a 1947-49 basis: March 113.6, April 113.7, May 114, June 114.5, July 114.7, August 115.

City Will Collect Leaves on Monday

The Department of Public Works will start picking up leaves on Monday, it was announced today by Superintendent Ernest A. Steuding.

He told The Freeman that crews will begin in the Second ward and move to other areas of the city from day to day.

Steuding suggested that property owners rake the leaves to the curbs for pick-ups in wards that he will announce from time to time during the collection period.

Answer Is To Quiz on Recent Hint

President Also Declares U. S. Aid to Israel Will Be Resumed; No Armed Forces Cut

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—President Eisenhower said today it would be perfectly hopeless for him to take part in a meeting with Soviet Premier Malenkov unless he knows Russia has an honest purpose for such a meeting.

He added that Russia could show such honesty in any of a hundred ways.

The President's news conference statement was in response to questions about a new Russian hint that Premier Malenkov may be ready for peace talks with the western chiefs of state.

Would Do Anything

The President also repeated what he has said before—that regardless of handicaps or inconvenience he would do anything in the world he thought would advance the cause of peace.

He qualified that again by saying there must be an indication it would produce results in good faith.

The President also told reporters:

1. United States economic aid to Israel will be resumed since Israel has agreed to suspend work on a hydro-electric power program which Arab neighbors charged would divert Jordan River water to their injury.

Delighted by Decision

Israel announced yesterday it would hold up the project while the United Nations Security Council debates the issue.

Eisenhower said he was delighted by this decision. He did not say just when aid to Israel would be resumed.

2. There exists no plan of any kind for reducing the armed forces of the United States anywhere.

3. It is conceivable that he will make some general statement urging the election of a Republican Congress next year, or even that he may give an incidental pat-on-the-back to some individual candidates. But he reiterated a previous stand that he will not go into any state or congressional district to campaign.

4. He hopes and believes cattle prices have reached the bottom and are on the way back up. In that connection, the President said only a future drouth or other crisis would justify calling a special session of Congress to deal with the farm problem.

5. When he shook hands with Paul Troast, Republican candidate for governor of New Jersey, on a recent visit to Atlantic City, he had never heard of Joseph (Joey) Fay, the imprisoned union official whose release Troast has sought in a written appeal to New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Bureau Is Reorganized

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Interior Department today announced a reorganization of the Reclamation Bureau to shift responsibility for basic technical work to Denver and make it the bureau's main working center. Existing district offices will be abolished as such but Assistant Secretary Fred G. Aandahl and Reclamation Commissioner W. A. Dexhiemer emphasized at a news conference that project or consolidated project offices likely will be necessary to replace them in the same locations.

Boy Hurt in Car Mishap

James Whittaker, 6, of 254 First avenue, suffered a cut on the head in a traffic mishap at Hasbrouck and Delaware avenues yesterday. A police report at 4:50 p. m., said Henry G. Diehl, of 29 East Pierpont street, was driving his sedan north on Hasbrouck avenue and going into Delaware when the car struck the boy and knocked him to the pavement. Diehl took him to Kingston Hospital and Officers Harold DeGraff and William Slover notified the boy's mother.

Won't Be Available

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—It's only in the idea stage, but NBC is considering a radio program featuring former members of Arthur Godfrey's CBS troupe and possibly his sister, Kathy. But spokesmen for the most recent additions to the Godfrey alumni, Julius La Rosa and Archie Bleyer, said they would not be available.

Israel Eases Tension, Offers to Delay Project While Security Council Debates Issue in UN

United Nations, Oct. 28 (AP)—Straining tensions over the hot Palestine dispute eased a notch today after Israel suddenly offered to hold up her Jordan river hydro-electric project while the Security Council debates the issue. The move won quick commendation from both the Arabs and the United States.

The council postponed until tomorrow its Palestine hearings to give the General Assembly's 60-Nation Political Committee a chance to resume debate on American charges that the Russians ran a torture center to extort germ warfare "confessions" from captured American airmen. Britain, Nationalist China, Cuba, Australia and New Zealand were scheduled to speak at today's meeting.

UN informants said the United States was prepared to present further evidence "of a more effective nature" to support her charges. These sources said Nationalist China also was expected to submit documentary evidence on the issue.

Israel's chief UN delegate Abba Eban made the surprise offer yesterday to suspend work on diverting the waters of the Jordan as the council debated Syria's complaint that the project deprived the Arabs of water for irrigation and breached the Arab-Jewish armistice.

Lebanon's Dr. Charles Malik, sole Arab League delegate on the council, voiced gratitude for Israel's "concilitory gesture" and congratulated Eban for making it.

UN circles said the Israeli compromise gesture might serve to cool off the boiling Palestine dispute which has roused fear in Washington and London that an open Israeli-Arab break was near.

These circles said Lebanon's warm response to the offer indicated that the Arabs, too, were anxious to see things calm down.

Israel also received praise from Chief U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., who was reported to have urged Eban to make the offer in hopes it would ease tension.

The council unanimously noted the Israeli offer and asked the UN truce supervision commission to see whether it was carried out.

Eban made his announcement after UN truce supervisor, Maj. Gen. Vagn Bennike warned the council that open war threatened in Palestine unless the armistice agreements were followed to the letter.

Bennike, summoned here at U. S. behest to report on the grave situation, said the spark which might touch off the Palestine powder keg was the Kibya, Jordan, raid, labelled by the mixed armistice commission as "cold blooded murder" of more than 50 Arabs by Israeli forces.

"They indicated that tension had increased to the breaking point, either locally in a particular area, or perhaps generally between the two countries," Bennike said.

He warned that when that breaking point is reached, "temptation to resort to force may prevail over wise councils and restraint."

Repatriation Head Says Five Slain by Fellow POWs

Panmunjom, Oct. 28 (AP)—The chairman of the Korean Repatriation Commission said today three Korean and Chinese prisoners have been slain by fellow POWs in a camp for anti-Communists in Korea's neutral zone.

Fifteen other prisoners have died—10 of natural causes, it was announced. Three were shot to death by Indian guards during demonstrations, one apparently committed suicide and another died of starvation, the report said.

Nine of the 18 dead were Koreans. The other nine were Chinese.

The Communists have charged bitterly in propoganda broadcasts and in letters to Indian custodial troops that South Korean and Chinese Nationalist agents in the camp tortured and murdered prisoners who wanted to return home. The Reds demanded that the murderers be found and punished.

Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimaya, Indian chairman of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission, said the Indians had not discovered the persons who committed the three murders.

Thimayya would not speculate on whether the men had been killed or tortured because they were Communists.

"We can't find out why any of the captives were killed," he said.

Thimayya said one prisoner had his upper legs crushed, another was near starvation before his death, and one had been badly beaten and his body thrown out of the compound by fellow prisoners.

The Indian general reported the murders after a meeting of the NNRC, which is deadlocked over whether to use force to make reluctant North Korean prisoners attend interviews with Communist representatives.

Thimayya said a statement on the deadlock over the use of force to get prisoners to attend explanations will be delayed for several days.

The Communist Poles and Czechs demand use of whatever force is necessary, even gunfire and bayonets, to make the North Koreans attend. The Swiss and Swedes oppose force. The Indian chairman believes the vote should be unanimous if force is to be used.

Jewish Council Urges U. S. Peace Move in Near East

Herman J. Eaton, on behalf of the Jewish Community Council of Kingston, and Abraham Streifer for the board of directors of the Jewish Community Center urged that the United States use its influence to secure peace in the Near East in a resolution forwarded to John Foster Dulles, secretary of state. The text of the resolution was as follows:

"We of the Kingston Jewish Community Center and the Kingston Jewish Community Council, Kingston, New York, who are concerned with the well-being, not only of Israel but of all the peoples of the Near East, deplore the outbreak of violence on the borders between Israel and the Arab States. We in no way condone the principles of reprisals or of the shedding of innocent blood by anyone. We must, however, make clear that these acts of violence which have resulted in the loss of many hundreds of innocent lives on both sides spring from a deliberate policy of the Arab States to maintain a state of war against Israel five years after the armistice agreement.

Charge Bias Stand

"We express our deep concern that our Department of State has hastened to single out one side for rebuke on the eve of the Security Council's consideration of the whole problem of Near East tension. In our view, the State Department has acted with evident bias and has disregarded the traditional policy of friendship between America and Israel. We regard the State Department's decision to withhold economic aid from Israel as an unwarranted act of duress. This situation points up the need for peace in the Near East, which Israel has sought again and again. We call upon our Government in concert with other powers to use its influence to convert armistice agreements into treaties of peace."

Says Rolls Are Opened

Albany, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Citizens Public Expenditures Survey reports 23 of the state's 62 counties have opened relief rolls to the public. The private taxpayers' group said yesterday such action reaffirmed the "right of citizens to know how public money is spent." The 1953 Legislature authorized local legislative bodies to open relief rolls to persons or organizations they considered entitled to such information. Publication of the information by news media still is prohibited.

Recently discovered ruins indicate that the Negev, dry southern part of Israel, was heavily populated in Roman times.

Ex-Justice Brewster Dies; Was Sufferer From Cancer

Albany, Oct. 28 (AP)—O. Byron Brewster, 67, who served on the State Supreme Court a quarter of a century, died yesterday in Albany Hospital.

A member of the retired Elizabethtown jurist's family said he had suffered from cancer.

Brewster had been in ill health since 1948 and retired last June because of this and, in his words, "in consideration of my age."

He had been a Supreme Court Justice from the Fourth Judicial District since 1927 to succeed Justice John C. Crapser of Massena, who retired. Brewster was a Republican.

At his bedside were his widow, the former Georgia Herie of Pittsfield, Mass., a daughter, Mrs. Harry O. Lee of Cropseyville, and her husband.

Other survivors include three daughters: Mrs. William Evans of Albany, Mrs. J. Stanley Carter, Jr. of Albany and Mrs. George Welsch of Schenectady, and a son, Gregory, of Port Henry.

Born in Adirondacks

Brewster was born July 23, 1886, in the Adirondack village of North Elba, now Lake Placid, Essex county. He was a descendant of Elder Brewster, one of the Pilgrim band who came to this country on the Mayflower.

The jurist attended Amherst College and Syracuse University, and was graduated from Albany Law School.

A court action involving La Verne Moore, golfing companion of motion picture stars, brought Brewster nationwide attention in 1937. Moore, otherwise known as "mysterious John Montague," was described as a "modern Jean Valjean" by the justice.

Moore Was Acquitted

Moore, whose acquaintances included Bing Crosby, Andy Devine and Guy Kibbee, was accused of first-degree robbery in a holdup of an Adirondack resort. After a Supreme Court hearing in Elizabethtown, Brewster released Moore in $25,000 bail. Moore later was acquitted. Brewster was the author of a State Historical Society paper on John Brown, abolitionist leader hanged after leading the raid on Harper's Ferry in 1848. Brown had lived in North Elba, and the paper described his days there.

The family announced it was Justice Brewster's wish that his friends contribute to the American Cancer Society rather than send flowers to his funeral.

Private funeral services will be held at the convenience of the family. Burial will be in Elizabethtown.

A SON RETURNS

It has been heartening to observe the reaction of the American people to the soldier who decided to return home after first declaring that he wanted to remain with his Communist captors in Korea. There is a readiness to forgive him and almost no desire to be self-righteous about the fact that he made a serious mistake.

For the soldier's parents the decision was a happy one. They are ready to welcome him, as are his neighbors and friends. It is possible that he may have to face army discipline for his earlier action. It is the nature of the world that a man must take responsibility for what he does. But whatever happens to him in this country he will be far better off than if he had remained with the Communists who were only interested in using him for propaganda purposes.

A man who has strayed from the path of patriotism and who realizes the error of his ways can be rehabilitated. It is good to see Americans remember the parable of the father who received his prodigal son with affection and understanding.

MORE BUSINESS—SAME PROFIT

During the first six months of this year department stores and specialty stores both did more business, measured by dollar volume, than in the same period in 1952, the improvement being three per cent and four per cent respectively.

It might naturally be expected that this meant a comparable rise in profits. But that was not the case. The net profits for department stores advanced to 1.3 per cent of net sales as compared with 0.8 per cent for the corresponding period a year ago—a gain of one half of one per cent. And the net profits of the specialty stores did not change at all.

Here is the answer to those who believe that high prices coupled with big volume naturally mean great profits for retailers. Rises in wages, taxes and other costs have often more than offset the benefits resulting from increased business. Competition, which never was more intense than now, holds profits to an extremely moderate figure.

EXPERIENCE THE GREAT TEACHER

The way to get a bellyful of socialism is to live under it.

England is a perfect example. The classic attitude of the British Labor Party is that the state should own all important enterprise, and the party went a long way in that direction before the voters threw it out of office. A short time ago the party held its annual conference, with 3,000 delegates in attendance. Proposals to nationalize the land, arms plant, and the aircraft and machine tools industries were voted down. A typical comment came from a coal miner who said, "A boss is a boss, no matter whether he gets the job from the state or private owners. Sometimes the bosses of private industry are more reasonable to deal with."

The British people are lucky, in that they can speak their minds and vote. The other victims of communism and socialism aren't so fortunate. Nothing short of war or revolution can unseat their oppressors.

Minds and umbrellas, oddly, have something in common. They are both most useful when open.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES

Thrift, the virtue emphasized above almost all others by Benjamin Franklin, does not seem in as high favor with Americans as formerly. Figures released by the Department of Labor, covering 57 major cities, show that the family car costs more money than the home, which few would deny was of more importance.

The figures were broken down in detail for one city, and reveal that the average family spent 12 per cent of its total budget on keeping the car going, as against 11.5 per cent for rent or upkeep of the home. Food is the one feature thought more vital than the car; eating takes 28.1 per cent of the family expenditures.

From one viewpoint an automobile is more important than a house. No one can ride to work in a house, but it is possible to sleep in a car.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

THE PRESIDENCY

Ever since I can remember, the Presidency has been called a man-killing job. It truly must be a hard job if so much is said about it. I looked up what it has done during the twentieth century:

William McKinley was assassinated.

Theodore Roosevelt left the Presidency in 1909; then he went hunting in Africa, edited the "Independent"; ran for a third term on the "Bull Moose" ticket; tried to get into World War I; died in 1919 at the age of 60.

William Howard Taft left the Presidency in 1913; he became Chief Justice of the United States; died in 1930 at the age of 72.

Woodrow Wilson died of a tumor on the brain at the age of 67. He became ill during his Presidency. There is no evidence that hard work had anything to do with it.

Warren Harding died in office at 57 under circumstances which leave the cause of death in doubt; but it was not overwork.

Calvin Coolidge left the Presidency in 1929. He died of a heart attack in 1933 at the age of 60.

Herbert Hoover is still alive at the age of 79. He is actively engaged in the reorganization of the Federal Government at the head of a commission that bears his name.

Franklin D. Roosevelt died in office at the age of 63. He had served three terms and was in his fourth.

Harry Truman, who left the Presidency less than a year ago, is busy writing an autobiography, making speeches and traveling about the country. He is 69 years old.

This is the record. Out of nine, only two died in office on account of illness; one was assassinated. As most Presidents are past middle age, death is not unexpected; the seven who died averaged 62½ years, if that tells anything.

There is no evidence in any kind of statistics that hard work, particularly mental work, ever killed anybody. As a matter of fact, the records tend to show that mental workers live long, perhaps because they keep out of the way of accidents, do not strain vital organs, and do not exercise. (The last point is a private theory of my own based on nothing.) Also, mental workers generally eat lustily, which, according to the doctors, should shorten their lives. Only in the case of Harding is there even a suspicion that his death had anything to do with eating.

The Presidency of the United States is an interesting, exciting, challenging job. Some psychologists insist that boredom in old age is a cause of decay and death. No one can take the Presidency seriously and be bored with the job. Every moment something new and vital appears to stimulate the mind. Of course, if a man, such as Harding, likes to dodge responsibility, he may find that the challenges pass him by. Charles Evans Hughes, who was Harding's Secretary of State, did most of the broad thinking of that administration. He died at the age of 86, after serving as Chief Justice of the United States.

The Presidency is a political position in a free society, which means that the President must be mentally agile, quick in his perceptions, capable of adjusting to public opinion, a mass psychologist to keep himself popular, an orator of sufficient calibre not to bore his nation, a leader of a party experienced enough not to lose elections. No President can succeed, just as no governor of a state can succeed, who lacks these qualities, even if he is a competent administrator.

The position therefore requires unusual maturity and a philosophic turn of mind. Theodore Roosevelt, William Howard Taft, Calvin Coolidge, and Franklin D. Roosevelt combined all these qualities. Herbert Hoover was too honest intellectually and too truthful in the expression of his views for the Presidency; he achieved his greatest popularity 20 years after he left that office. Harry Truman still needs to be appraised. Eisenhower is in office and cannot be discussed objectively.

I doubt that the Presidency is a man-killing job except for those who dislike its numerous challenges and who cannot understand the nature of a free society and the limitations of constitutional government. Such a man finds its inhibitions distasteful and fails. Few such have reached the Presidency.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

NERVOUS TENSION AND SKIN ERUPTIONS

Just as infected teeth were blamed some years ago for all kinds of diseases, our jokester friends now say that when a physician cannot find the cause of certain symptoms, he tells the patient that the disease—asthma, heart disturbance, arthritis— is caused by the patient's nerves. Finally, when the phsyician told the patient that his skin disease was caused by his nerves, it was the limit of these jokes. Today, most physicians agree that the nerves cause skin diseases and the rest admit that the nerves cause an exaggeration or increase in the symptoms of skin diseases.

In the British Practitioner, Dr. H. R. Vickers, Royal Infirmary, Sheffield, states that true or organic skin diseases of themselves are few. On the other hand, general emotional tension appears to play a leading part in many dermatoses (skin diseases). Probably the first abnormal change is irritation and skin diseases are produced by rubbing rather than by scratching. "Almost always there is some history of nervous emotional tension although it may not follow the tension immediately. Cure depends on finding the emotional disturbance; fortunately in this type of case this is not difficult."

In most of these cases the emotional disturbance is caused by frustration. "The problem is usually not sexual maladjustment but is more commonly associated with some deep sense of frustration and injustice."

One of the skin diseases commonly associated with emotional upsets is rosacea, congestion of the skin, blushing; skin may become permanently reddened.

Emotional factors seem commonly to be responsible for return of psoriasis and eczema. "Sometimes after some severe emotional upset, a patient will have a skin reaction to some substance he has handled for years without having had any skin symptoms before. The symptoms appear suddenly, often overnight, and the patient's story of how they appear does not conform with the usual development of a known skin disease."

Return of the symptoms may follow periods of stress or coincide with a time when observation and attention are expected, as just before a visit to the doctor. There is nearly always a history of genuine (often trivial) injury or infective condition which required attention and dressing. There is often a past history of emotional crisis, nervous instability or "breakdown."

What about treatment of skin ailments caused by the emotions?

The ideal object of the treatment is the patient's own realization that his or her lack of ability to properly face life's problems causes tension and this tension affects nerves and bloodvessels of the skin. Blushing is an example.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

Washington, (NEA) — A new way to get rid of Democratic hold-over officials who won't resign their positions to make way for Republican appointees has been suggested to the Eisenhower administration. It is to "reorganize" them out of their jobs.

The situation has come to a head in the impasse over the War Claims Commission.

The three commissioners are: Chairman Daniel F. Cleary, a Chicago lawyer; Mrs. Georgia L. Lusk, a member of the 80th Congress from New Mexico, and Myron Weiner, a New York lawyer with considerable experience in the Far East. All were appointed to office by President Truman.

Several weeks ago the White House let the three members of this commission know that their resignations would be acceptable. They decided they wouldn't resign as their jobs were created by the War Claims Act of 1948. The commission was originally formed for five years, and an amendment extending its life until March, 1955.

It is generally agreed that commissioners are within their legal rights in refusing to resign until their assigned work is completed. That makes the task of the Republican administration in getting rid of the incumbent commissioners all the more difficult.

Reorganized Out of Existence

It could be done by passing a new law, abolishing the old commission and creating a new one. But with the exceedingly shaky control which the Republicans now exercise over Congress, that might be impossible.

The suggested alternative is to put the War Claims Commission through ex-President Hoover's reorganization wringer. All this would be done in the name of increasing the efficiency of the organization and achieving greater government economy.

This reorganization would still require congressional approval, but it would be a neat political trick if it could be accomplished.

It might not create many new jobs for the Republicans. But it would take at least away three $12,000 jobs from Democratic appointees. The commission now has under 200 employes.

The big myth under which the commission was set up originally is that it costs the taxpayer nothing. This comes from a provision which states that all claims were to be paid out of funds received from the sale of German and Japanese assets seized during World War 2. Even the expense of administering the act, about $1 million for this year, come from this fund.

The catch here is that if this money were not used for the administration of the War Claims Act, it could be used for other government expenses and thus save the taxpayers that much money.

Paid Out Huge Sums

So far, the commission has paid out about $125 million in personal benefits. It estimates that another $30 million to $40 million will be required to clear up some 10,000 still unsettled personal claims.

Those eligible to receive payments under the original War Claims Act included about 120,000 American and 100,000 Filipino soldiers imprisoned by the enemy during World War 2, descendants of 48,000 POW's, and 10,000 living and deceased American and Civilian internees in the Pacific area.

By an amendment to the act in 1949, financing the restoration of church properties destroyed during the war was also provided for. The bulk of the commission's unfinished business now is in settling about 90 claims under this section. Payments for property damage may total $60 million.

In reorganizing this work into other government agencies, it has been proposed that the POW claims could be handled by the Veterans' Administration. Civilian claims could be handled by the Bureau of Employes' Compensation in the Department of Labor. Property claims could be handled by the U. S. Department of Justice Civil Division. It is still under study by the White House staff.

Speculation Is Gov. Dewey May Be Seeking Cabinet Post Instead of Other Term

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 27 — Thomas E. Dewey's reported decision not to run for re-election as governor of New York in November, 1954, is an important development in national politics. He is known to have made up his mind last year that he wouldn't run again, but he has deferred any announcement and probably will not make it formally till next spring.

The significance of the Dewey retirement may be this: the New York governor will be able to take a position in the Eisenhower cabinet if a vacancy develops. Then, if President Eisenhower decides not to be a candidate for renomination, the opportunity would be open to Mr. Dewey to try for the nomination from inside the government. As a cabinet officer, he would be in the limelight and would be getting valuable experience in national affairs.

For several months now—particularly since President Eisenhower made a cryptic remark at a public dinner attended earlier this year by Gov. Dewey about the latter's further usefulness in the national picture—it has been assumed that Mr. Eisenhower will say sometime between now and 1956 that he does not want to run again. Four years in the White House is likely to prove a grueling experience for a man who reluctantly accepted political office in 1952 and who may figure that at the age of 66 in 1956 he will want to travel around the world and enjoy some leisure.

But Dwight Eisenhower, on the other hand, is a soldier, and something of the same influence which caused him to listen to the urgings of friends that he allow his name to be entered in the New Hampshire primaries in March, 1952, as a public service may be felt again by him when the question of running for a second term comes up. In any event, the decision is not likely to be made known until close to the time for the 1956 Republican convention.

If the Eisenhower administration is fairly successful and the President is personally very popular, the pressure upon him will be almost irresistible to accept a second nomination and keep the country from being handed back to "corruption and communism"—the political criticism voiced in 1952 against the Democrats. To begin a second term at the age of sixty-six will make him two years younger than when President Truman retired; and it wasn't age that influenced the latter to bow out but political considerations.

Gov. Dewey has been the center of a factional fight inside the Republican party. When he was a candidate for the Presidency, he ran ahead of his party in Congress in both 1944 and 1948. While bitterness has arisen between the Dewey and Taft factions, this antagonism would be largely absorbed if the New York governor came to the Cabinet in Washington and began to work with all factions of the party.

What Cabinet post for Gov. Dewey? He has been mentioned for Secretary of State in the event that his close friend, John Foster Dulles, tires of the job—and the secretary is going at a pretty fast pace these days in hard work and exhausting trips to various parts of the world.

There is always the possibility that a vacancy may occur on the Supreme Court of the United States, to which it might be logical to name Attorney General Brownell, an excellent lawyer and a man of judicial temperament. If the attorney generalship became vacant, Gov. Dewey would be a natural choice. For, as district attorney in New York, he made a great record against the criminal elements and is noted for his ability not only as a prosecutor but as an organizer.

It could be, too, that the New York governor might be willing to go on the Supreme bench himself, as Gov. Hughes did in 1908, but if that happened Mr. Dewey would take himself out of the rnnning for the presidency. He is much too young and vigorous a man to retire from national politics.

The news dispatches from New York say Gov. Dewey plans next year to resume the practice of law. That's a plausible way to describe his temporary plans—but Thomas E. Dewey some day will be a political figure again and on the national rather than the state level.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

In many joyous endorsements of the Nobel award to Winston Churchill, our journalism naively draws attention to a dramatic decline within its own pages of the very quality for which Winston was honored. This master is one of the few lyrical journalists now doing business in the English language. H. L. Mencken has been the only American worthy to death of Percy Hammond and little Heinie, himself, has been out of action a long time and may never be heard from more. Mencken's mind was mischievous and nimble by contrast with Churchill's stolidness but he had a serious fault of raiding big dictionaries for obsolete or strange words which he sprinkled among his impudence solely for the fun of confounding his clientele. This distraction reduced the value of his essay whereas Churchill makes little words sing as they will in the service of a careful writer.

The comparison may seem unfair to Churchill now that he is a man for the ages by reason of his glorious bravado when the world, including Hitler, knew his heart was heavy with dread. But the fact remains that Winston spent many years of pot-boiling for the Fleet street market and was just another ink-stained wretch but with velvet lapels. In the era which ended with the paper shortage and the invention of astringent journalism in Britain, many public men scuffled and elbowed for extra money to a degree that made the regular professionals morose. They were utterly graceless costers, hawking the by product of the election returns no more inhibited than any Roosevelt in our day. No wonder that the poor, seedy penny-a-liners covering salacious divorces or scribbling anonymous, dispirited drivel about the mating habits of the earthworm correctly felt that such bounders were dashing the alecup from their lips.

The quality of English journalese has declined with ours but not in the same peculiar affections of crude, even ungrammatical expression. They have had the excuse of the paper shortage but that doesn't altogether explain their ugliness for they sometimes do swing out into space and smear up tons of good white newsprint with idiotic coverage of paltry criminals or artificial spats with a standardized Yankee rotter. Our deterioration has been deliberate and should seriously concern the societies of editors of the several degrees who visit New York in the winter to discuss freedom of the press and fearlessly denounce censorship in the Argentine.

The frightful innovations which were thrust upon us by Chinaboy Luce in his own peculiar pidgin by some psychological freak infected almost all our journalism, including other magazines, and much of our radio prattle. Where as 25 years ago newspaper reporters and rewrite hands took pride in the composition of pear shaped periods and flights of imagery about fires and funerals, the new mode is just as resolutely harsh. In fact, in those days, when Mencken and Nathan were shooting spitballs at dignity itself, most rewrite men secretly read Mercury and Mencken's original cliches, a little more artful than Nathan's, could be combed out of everything to the left of the goitres and electric belts.

Nothing as horrible as Drew Pearson's jerked-English paraphrase of timestyle would have got past any copy desk and the depth of the decline may be gauged by the fact that this phenomenon may claim, with what truth I do not presume to know, that his merchandise appears in several hundred American dailies. The only really literate current essayists in the cosmic field who can adorn a theme with ornamental language are the alsops but there were a dozen as good at the time I speak of.

The name of Percy Hammond will mean nothing even to many Americans who were reading papers in the 'twenties and the 'teens. For some reason he limited himself to the stage and actors and pretty much to impromptus such as reviews done in a feverish hurry. His Sunday specials were longer and finer wrought but his daily standard was a high degree of beauty. Percy also, like Mencken, used what he himself called out-of-town words, but always with marvelous grace and there was hardly a time that any other word would have quite sufficed.

I chanced to call on him at the Algonquin with the Grantland Rice's one evening not long after he was left desolate by the death of his wife. He was sopping wet and there was a whole bowl of cigarette butts on the bed table. His son, John, was staring out the window, helpless, for Percy was actually through with life.

He plainly had pneumonia and when I made some stupid remark about his getting well and writing more beautiful copy he said, "I don't want to get well and I don't want to write another word." They put him in a hospital and he died in a couple of days. I heard he wrote hard, which is true of most successful hands although Broun just played the typewriter like a professor in a honkatonk and out came limpid literature, much of it good satire and whimsy.

No speech of Churchill's ever will be mistaken for any of Roosevelt's factory-made banalities because Churchill takes pride

A SON RETURNS

It has been heartening to observe the reaction of the American people to the soldier who decided to return home after first declaring that he wanted to remain with his Communist captors in Korea. There is a readiness to forgive him and almost no desire to be self-righteous about the fact that he made a serious mistake.

For the soldier's parents the decision was a happy one. They are ready to welcome him, as are his neighbors and friends. It is possible that he may have to face army discipline for his earlier action. It is the nature of the world that a man must take responsibility for what he does. But whatever happens to him in this country he will be far better off than if he had remained with the Communists who were only interested in using him for propaganda purposes.

A man who has strayed from the path of patriotism and who realizes the error of his ways can be rehabilitated. It is good to see Americans remember the parable of the father who received his prodigal son with affection and understanding.

MORE BUSINESS—SAME PROFIT

During the first six months of this year department stores and specialty stores both did more business, measured by dollar volume, than in the same period in 1952, the improvement being three per cent and four per cent respectively.

It might naturally be expected that this meant a comparable rise in profits. But that was not the case. The net profits for department stores advanced to 1.3 per cent of net sales as compared with 0.8 per cent for the corresponding period a year ago—a gain of one half of one per cent. And the net profits of the specialty stores did not change at all.

Here is the answer to those who believe that high prices coupled with big volume naturally mean great profits for retailers. Rises in wages, taxes and other costs have often more than offset the benefits resulting from increased business. Competition, which never was more intense than now, holds profits to an extremely moderate figure.

EXPERIENCE THE GREAT TEACHER

The way to get a bellyful of socialism is to live under it.

England is a perfect example. The classic attitude of the British Labor Party is that the state should own all important enterprise, and the party went a long way in that direction before the voters threw it out of office. A short time ago the party held its annual conference, with 3,000 delegates in attendance. Proposals to nationalize the land, arms plant, and the aircraft and machine tools industries were voted down. A typical comment came from a coal miner who said, "A boss is a boss, no matter whether he gets the job from the state or private owners. Sometimes the bosses of private industry are more reasonable to deal with."

Minds and umbrellas, oddly, have something in common. They are both most useful when open.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES

Thrift, the virtue emphasized above almost all others by Benjamin Franklin, does not seem in as high favor with Americans as formerly. Figures released by the Department of Labor, covering 57 major cities, show that the family car costs more money than the home, which few would deny was of more importance.

The figures were broken down in detail for one city, and reveal that the average family spent 12 per cent of its total budget on keeping the car going, as against 11.5 per cent for rent or upkeep of the home. Food is the one feature thought more vital than the car; eating takes 28.1 per cent of the family expenditures.

From one viewpoint an automobile is more important than a house. No one can ride to work in a house, but it is possible to sleep in a car.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

THE PRESIDENCY

Ever since I can remember, the Presidency has been called a man-killing job. It truly must be a hard job if so much is said about it. I looked up what it has done during the twentieth century:

William McKinley was assassinated.

Theodore Roosevelt left the Presidency in 1909; then he went hunting in Africa, edited the "Independent"; ran for a third term on the "Bull Moose" ticket; tried to get into World War I; died in 1919 at the age of 60.

William Howard Taft left the Presidency in 1913; he became Chief Justice of the United States; died in 1930 at the age of 72.

Woodrow Wilson died of a tumor on the brain at the age of 67. He became ill during his Presidency. There is no evidence that hard work had anything to do with it.

Warren Harding died in office at 57 under circumstances which leave the cause of death in doubt; but it was not overwork.

Calvin Coolidge left the Presidency in 1929. He died of a heart attack in 1933 at the age of 60.

Herbert Hoover is still alive at the age of 79. He is actively engaged in the reorganization of the Federal Government at the head of a commission that bears his name.

Franklin D. Roosevelt died in office at the age of 63. He had served three terms and was in his fourth.

Harry Truman, who left the Presidency less than a year ago, is busy writing an autobiography, making speeches and traveling about the country. He is 69 years old.

This is the record. Out of nine, only two died in office on account of illness; one was assassinated. As most Presidents are past middle age, death is not unexpected; the seven who died averaged 62½ years, if that tells anything.

There is no evidence in any kind of statistics that hard work, particularly mental work, ever killed anybody. As a matter of fact, the records tend to show that mental workers live long, perhaps because they keep out of the way of accidents, do not strain vital organs, and do not exercise. (The last point is a private theory of my own based on nothing.) Also, mental workers generally eat lustily, which, according to the doctors, should shorten their lives. Only in the case of Harding is there even a suspicion that his death had anything to do with eating.

The Presidency of the United States is an interesting, exciting, challenging job. Some psychologists insist that boredom in old age is a cause of decay and death. No one can take the Presidency seriously and be bored with the job. Every moment something new and vital appears to stimulate the mind. Of course, if a man, such as Harding, likes to dodge responsibility, he may find that the challenges pass him by. Charles Evans Hughes, who was Harding's Secretary of State, did most of the broad thinking of that administration. He died at the age of 86, after serving as Chief Justice of the United States.

The Presidency is a political position in a free society, which means that the President must be mentally agile, quick in his perceptions, capable of adjusting to public opinion, a mass psychologist to keep himself popular, an orator of sufficient calibre not to bore his nation, a leader of a party experienced enough not to lose elections. No President can succeed, just as no governor of a state can succeed, who lacks these qualities, even if he is a competent administrator.

The position therefore requires unusual maturity and a philosophic turn of mind. Theodore Roosevelt, William Howard Taft, Calvin Coolidge, and Franklin D. Roosevelt combined all these qualities. Herbert Hoover was too honest intellectually and too truthful in the expression of his views for the Presidency; he achieved his greatest popularity 20 years after he left that office. Harry Truman still needs to be appraised. Eisenhower is in office and cannot be discussed objectively.

I doubt that the Presidency is a man-killing job except for those who dislike its numerous challenges and who cannot understand the nature of a free society and the limitations of constitutional government. Such a man finds its inhibitions distasteful and fails. Few such have reached the Presidency.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

NERVOUS TENSION AND SKIN ERUPTIONS

Just as infected teeth were blamed some years ago for all kinds of diseases, our jokester friends now say that when a physician cannot find the cause of certain symptoms, he tells the patient that the disease—asthma, heart disturbance, arthritis— is caused by the patient's nerves. Finally, when the phsyician told the patient that his skin disease was caused by his nerves, it was the limit of these jokes. Today, most physicians agree that the nerves cause skin diseases and the rest admit that the nerves cause an exaggeration or increase in the symptoms of skin diseases.

In the British Practitioner, Dr. H. R. Vickers, Royal Infirmary, Sheffield, states that true or organic skin diseases of themselves are few. On the other hand, general emotional tension appears to play a leading part in many dermatoses (skin diseases). Probably the first abnormal change is irritation and skin diseases are produced by rubbing rather than by scratching. "Almost always there is some history of nervous emotional tension although it may not follow the tension immediately. Cure depends on finding the emotional disturbance; fortunately in this type of case this is not difficult."

In most of these cases the emotional disturbance is caused by frustration. "The problem is usually not sexual maladjustment but is more commonly associated with some deep sense of frustration and injustice."

One of the skin diseases commonly associated with emotional upsets is rosacea, congestion of the skin, blushing; skin may become permanently reddened.

Emotional factors seem commonly to be responsible for return of psoriasis and eczema. "Sometimes after some severe emotional upset, a patient will have a skin reaction to some substance he has handled for years without having had any skin symptoms before. The symptoms appear suddenly, often overnight, and the patient's story of how they appear does not conform with the usual development of a known skin disease."

Return of the symptoms may follow periods of stress or coincide with a time when observation and attention are expected, as just before a visit to the doctor. There is nearly always a history of genuine (often trivial) injury or infective condition which required attention and dressing. There is often a past history of emotional crisis, nervous instability or "breakdown."

What about treatment of skin ailments caused by the emotions?

The ideal object of the treatment is the patient's own realization that his or her lack of ability to properly face life's problems causes tension and this tension affects nerves and bloodvessels of the skin. Blushing is an example.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

Washington, (NEA) — A new way to get rid of Democratic holdover officials who won't resign their positions to make way for Republican appointees has been suggested to the Eisenhower administration. It is to "reorganize" them out of their jobs.

The situation has come to a head in the impasse over the War Claims Commission.

The three commissioners are: Chairman Daniel F. Cleary, a Chicago lawyer; Mrs. Georgia L. Lusk, a member of the 80th Congress from New Mexico, and Myron Weiner, a New York lawyer with considerable experience in the Far East. All were appointed to office by President Truman.

Several weeks ago the White House let the three members of this commission know that their resignations would be acceptable. They decided they wouldn't resign as their jobs were created by the War Claims Act of 1948. The commission was originally formed for five years, and an amendment extending its life until March, 1955.

It is generally agreed that commissioners are within their legal rights in refusing to resign until their assigned work is completed. That makes the task of the Republican administration in getting rid of the incumbent commissioners all the more difficult.

Reorganized Out of Existence

It could be done by passing a new law, abolishing the old commission and creating a new one. But with the exceedingly shaky control which the Republicans now exercise over Congress, that might be impossible.

The suggested alternative is to put the War Claims Commission through ex-President Hoover's reorganization wringer. All this would be done in the name of increasing the efficiency of the organization and achieving greater government economy.

This reorganization would still require congressional approval, but it would be a neat political trick if it could be accomplished.

It might not create many new jobs for the Republicans. But it would take at least away three $12,000 jobs from Democratic appointees. The commission now has under 200 employes.

The big myth under which the commission was set up originally is that it costs the taxpayer nothing. This comes from a provision which states that all claims were to be paid out of funds received from the sale of German and Japanese assets seized during World War 2. Even the expense of administering the act, about $1 million for this year, come from this fund.

The catch here is that if this money were not used for the administration of the War Claims Act, it could be used for other government expenses and thus save the taxpayers that much money.

Paid Out Huge Sums

So far, the commission has paid out about $125 million in personal benefits. It estimates that another $30 million to $40 million will be required to clear up some 10,000 still unsettled personal claims.

Those eligible to receive payments under the original War Claims Act included about 120,000 American and 100,000 Filipino soldiers imprisoned by the enemy during World War 2, descendants of 48,000 POW's, and 10,000 living and deceased American and Civilian internees in the Pacific area.

By an amendment to the act in 1949, financing the restoration of church properties destroyed during the war was also provided for. The bulk of the commission's unfinished business now is in settling about 90 claims under this section. Payments for property damage may total $60 million.

In reorganizing this work into other government agencies, it has been proposed that the POW claims could be handled by the Veterans' Administration. Civilian claims could be handled by the Bureau of Employes' Compensation in the Department of Labor. Property claims could be handled by the U. S. Department of Justice Civil Division. Speculation Is Gov. Dewey May Be Seeking Cabinet Post Instead of Other Term

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 27 — Thomas E. Dewey's reported decision not to run for re-election as governor of New York in November, 1954, is an important development in national politics. He is known to have made up his mind last year that he wouldn't run again, but he has deferred any announcement and probably will not make it formally till next spring.

The significance of the Dewey retirement may be this: the New York governor will be able to take a position in the Eisenhower cabinet if a vacancy develops. Then, if President Eisenhower decides not to be a candidate for renomination, the opportunity would be open to Mr. Dewey to try for the nomination from inside the government. As a cabinet officer, he would be in the limelight and would be getting valuable experience in national affairs.

For several months now—particularly since President Eisenhower made a cryptic remark at a public dinner attended earlier this year by Gov. Dewey about the latter's further usefulness in the national picture—it has been assumed that Mr. Eisenhower will say sometime between now and 1956 that he does not want to run again. Four years in the White House is likely to prove a grueling experience for a man who reluctantly accepted political office in 1952 and who may figure that at the age of 66 in 1956 he will want to travel around the world and enjoy some leisure.

But Dwight Eisenhower, on the other hand, is a soldier, and something of the same influence which caused him to listen to the urgings of friends that he allow his name to be entered in the New Hampshire primaries in March, 1952, as a public service may be felt again by him when the question of running for a second term comes up. In any event, the decision is not likely to be made known until close to the time for the 1956 Republican convention.

If the Eisenhower administration is fairly successful and the President is personally very popular, the pressure upon him will be almost irresistible to accept a second nomination and keep the country from being handed back to "corruption and communism"—the political criticism voiced in 1952 against the Democrats. To begin a second term at the age of sixty-six will make him two years younger than when President Truman retired; and it wasn't age that influenced the latter to bow out but political considerations.

Gov. Dewey has been the center of a factional fight inside the Republican party. When he was a candidate for the Presidency, he ran ahead of his party in Congress in both 1944 and 1948. While bitterness has arisen between the Dewey and Taft factions, this antagonism would be largely absorbed if the New York governor came to the Cabinet in Washington and began to work with all factions of the party.

What Cabinet post for Gov. Dewey? He has been mentioned for Secretary of State in the event that his close friend, John Foster Dulles, tires of the job—and the secretary is going at a pretty fast pace these days in hard work and exhausting trips to various parts of the world.

There is always the possibility that a vacancy may occur on the Supreme Court of the United States, to which it might be logical to name Attorney General Brownell, an excellent lawyer and a man of judicial temperament. If the attorney generalship became vacant, Gov. Dewey would be a natural choice. For, as district attorney in New York, he made a great record against the criminal elements and is noted for his ability not only as a prosecutor but as an organizer.

It could be, too, that the New York governor might be willing to go on the Supreme bench himself, as Gov. Hughes did in 1908, but if that happened Mr. Dewey would take himself out of the rnnning for the presidency. He is much too young and vigorous a man to retire from national politics.

The news dispatches from New York say Gov. Dewey plans next year to resume the practice of law. That's a plausible way to describe his temporary plans—but Thomas E. Dewey some day will be a political figure again and on the national rather than the state level.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

In many joyous endorsements of the Nobel award to Winston Churchill, our journalism naively draws attention to a dramatic decline within its own pages of the very quality for which Winston was honored. This master is one of the few lyrical journalists now doing business in the English language. H. L. Mencken has been the only American worthy to death of Percy Hammond and little Heinie, himself, has been out of action a long time and may never be heard from more. Mencken's mind was mischievous and nimble by contrast with Churchill's stolidness but he had a serious fault of raiding big dictionaries for obsolete or strange words which he sprinkled among his impudence solely for the fun of confounding his clientele. This distraction reduced the value of his essay whereas Churchill makes little words sing as they will in the service of a careful writer.

The comparison may seem unfair to Churchill now that he is a man for the ages by reason of his glorious bravado when the world, including Hitler, knew his heart was heavy with dread. But the fact remains that Winston spent many years of pot-boiling for the Fleet street market and was just another ink-stained wretch but with velvet lapels. In the era which ended with the paper shortage and the invention of astringent journalism in Britain, many public men scuffled and elbowed for extra money to a degree that made the regular professionals morose. They were utterly graceless costers, hawking the by product of the election returns no more inhibited than any Roosevelt in our day. No wonder that the poor, seedy penny-a-liners covering salacious divorces or scribbling anonymous, dispirited drivel about the mating habits of the earthworm correctly felt that such bounders were dashing the alecup from their lips.

The quality of English journalese has declined with ours but not in the same peculiar affections of crude, even ungrammatical expression. They have had the excuse of the paper shortage but that doesn't altogether explain their ugliness for they sometimes do swing out into space and smear up tons of good white newsprint with idiotic coverage of paltry criminals or artificial spats with a standardized Yankee rotter. Our deterioration has been deliberate and should seriously concern the societies of editors of the several degrees who visit New York in the winter to discuss freedom of the press and fearlessly denounce censorship in the Argentine.

The frightful innovations which were thrust upon us by Chinaboy Luce in his own peculiar pidgin by some psychological freak infected almost all our journalism, including other magazines, and much of our radio prattle. Where as 25 years ago newspaper reporters and rewrite hands took pride in the composition of pear shaped periods and flights of imagery about fires and funerals, the new mode is just as resolutely harsh. In fact, in those days, when Mencken and Nathan were shooting spitballs at dignity itself, most rewrite men secretly read Mercury and Mencken's original cliches, a little more artful than Nathan's, could be combed out of everything to the left of the goitres and electric belts.

Nothing as horrible as Drew Pearson's jerked-English paraphrase of timestyle would have got past any copy desk and the depth of the decline may be gauged by the fact that this phenomenon may claim, with what truth I do not presume to know, that his merchandise appears in several hundred American dailies. The only really literate current essayists in the cosmic field who can adorn a theme with ornamental language are the alsops but there were a dozen as good at the time I speak of.

The name of Percy Hammond will mean nothing even to many Americans who were reading papers in the 'twenties and the 'teens. For some reason he limited himself to the stage and actors and pretty much to impromptus such as reviews done in a feverish hurry. His Sunday specials were longer and finer wrought but his daily standard was a high degree of beauty. Percy also, like Mencken, used what he himself called out-of-town words, but always with marvelous grace and there was hardly a time that any other word would have quite sufficed.

I chanced to call on him at the Algonquin with the Grantland Rice's one evening not long after he was left desolate by the death of his wife. He was sopping wet and there was a whole bowl of cigarette butts on the bed table. His son, John, was staring out the window, helpless, for Percy was actually through with life.

He plainly had pneumonia and when I made some stupid remark about his getting well and writing more beautiful copy he said, "I don't want to get well and I don't want to write another word." They put him in a hospital and he died in a couple of days. I heard he wrote hard, which is true of most successful hands although Broun just played the typewriter like a professor in a honkatonk and out came limpid literature, much of it good satire and whimsy.

No speech of Churchill's ever will be mistaken for any of Roosevelt's factory-made banalities because Churchill takes pride

Noted Boys' Choir Visits in City

The famous Little Singers From Paris, a boys' choir which has sung thousands of times all over the world, stopped last night at the Rose Marie Cabins on Route 9W just north of Kingston.

According to Joseph DiDonna, proprietor of the cabins, there were 38 boys accompanied by their renowned director, Father Maillet. They came by bus from Montreal and continued this morning to Scranton, Pa., where a concert is scheduled.

The Little Singers was founded in 1907, attracting children from the working classes of Paris. By 1931 the group began to enjoy world fame and made a 100-day tour of the United States and Canada. Between 1931 and 1939 they won new laurels in Europe and Africa and again in North America. In 1949 they again made a successful tour of the American continents.

To Stir Choir Interest

According to literature of the Little Singers, the choir has become the nucleus of a vast movement to revive interest in boy choirs. In France, where their influence first made itself felt, they have 207 choir schools associated with them, a total of 12,000 little boys in France alone. Following their example, other groups are being formed throughout the world, and others which had been founded many years ago are joining up with them. Their professed dream is "to unite little children all over the world in one huge singing family under the sign of peace."

Five Teen-Agers Held for Damage

Over the past weekend acts of vandalism have been reported at the Hurley School and those responsible for the acts have been identified and appropriate action is to be taken by the authorities.

Monday Samuel Vaughn, president of the board of trustees of the village, reported to Sheriff Cluett Schantz that the school property had been entered on Friday night and again on Sunday and considerable damage done to the school building and the play area. Sheriff Schantz assigned County Investigator Arthur Brown to the case.

Admit to Damage

Monday five 'teen-age boys were located who admitted to Brown having had a part in the acts and of having damaged the property of Hurley School District No. 4. One of the youths was a student at the Hurley School, two are students at the M.J.M. School in Kingston and two are Kingston High School students. Prompt action on the part of Sheriff Schantz in assigning an investigator to the job and the alert action of Brown quickly brought to justice all the persons involved, authorities said.

Late Bulletin

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri stepped into the three-day-old milk strike today and called an immediate city hall meeting of top union and company officials.

"It is imperative," the mayor said in a statement, "that responsible bargaining proceed without a moment's delay."

Earlier a top milk industry representative had dashed hopes for a quick end to the fresh milk drouth that has hit 12 million persons in a two-state metropolitan area.

Spurred by a mediator's statement that "some tangible progress" was being made in peace talks, rumors circulated that an agreement would be reached today, to be followed by deliveries of milk tomorrow and a price hike the day after.

Strike Vote Authorized

New York, Oct. 28 (AP) — A strike vote among 2,300 men who handle and deliver the city's newspapers was authorized at a union membership meeting last night. If a strike is voted, it would take place at midnight next Saturday and affect deliveries of nine major newspapers.

Democratic Aides Hear Speeches by Kelly, Coughlin

During a meeting of the Democratic Women's Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel Tuesday night, addresses were made by William A. Kelly, secretary of the Democratic County Committee, and Thomas F. Coughlin, Democratic candidate for alderman-at-large.

Following are excerpts of Kelly's talk:

"For more than 19 years I have been a practicing attorney here in the City of Kingston, and so I believe I have a fairly good idea of how a lawyer conducts the practice of his profession. I think that I have also some reasonable conception of the many and varied problems with which the average lawyer is faced, even one who is engaged in private practice without any outside political position.

Since the Republican candidate for Mayor is a busy, practicing attorney I would like to discuss with you this question: Should the voters of the City of Kingston elect, as Mayor, a candidate who is a lawyer? I firmly believe that the people should not elect a lawyer as Mayor. May I tell you at once that there is absolutely nothing personal in what I am saying to you! The Republican candidate for Mayor and I are friends, and have been friendly for some years. But my belief is shared by many people. In fact, the Kingston Daily Freeman once carried an editorial advising the voters to elect a businessman, not a lawyer, for Mayor, and giving reasons for such position.

My point simply is, that no lawyer, regardless of who he is, should be Mayor of this city. The reasons are fairly simple. The management of a one and a half million dollar corporation such as the City of Kingston unquestionably requires the full time services of its Mayor. This city cannot be properly managed or operated on any part time basis."

Talk by Coughlin

Following are excerpts of Coughlin's address:

• "The people of the 7th Ward have honored me on five different occasions by electing me to your Common Council. I am appearing before you now as a candidate for Alderman-at-Large. I consider this a great honor. I feel that having served my apprenticeship in the Common Council I am qualified to seek the Presidency of that body.

Though elected as an Alderman from the 7th Ward, I have always fought and worked in the interest of the entire city.

The Republican candidate for mayor has implied that he favors a sale of part of the city's water supply, Reservoir No. 1; the Democratic candidate for mayor promptly repudiated that proposal. I, too, repudiate such a proposal. What has the Republican candidate for alderman-at-large to say on the matter? Does he favor the sale of part of the city's water supply? If he does, let him make his position clear. If he does not approve, let him say so. Does the Republican candidate for alderman-at-large have as little faith in the development of our city as apparently his own candidate for mayor has?

Believe me, I would always oppose the sale of city-owned property, whether a source of water supply, or anything else, unless it was absolutely necessary. I believe in our city; I have faith in its future expansion."

West Shokan Speaker

This school is supported completely by the Brazilian church who contribute money, rice, beans, fruits and sugar to support the students.

Newsom Praises Benson

Elmira, Oct. 28 (AP)—Herschel D. Newsom, master of the National Grange says Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson "is doing the best he can with the machinery available."

Mrs. Bruce Seeks To Join Husband; Petitions Court

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—Mrs. Bettine Field Bruce, daughter of publisher and department store magnate Marshall Field, is seeking court permission to take her daughter by a pervious marriage to England to rejoin her present husband, a Negro.

The 30-year-old Mrs. Bruce says that because of racial difference she did not elect to live with her husband, Eldridge Bruce, 34, in "a segregated community" in Washington, D. C., while he was studying at Howard University.

However, she says he is now studying in London and that they have bought a home in England in "a non-segregated community."

Mrs. Bruce's action was disclosed yesterday in New York Supreme Court. It concerns her daughter, Bettine Goodall, 9, by her marriage to Dr. McChesney Goodall Jr., a Yale Medical School professor.

Won Girl's Custody

Custody of the girl was given Mrs. Bruce in 1947 when she obtained a Nevada divorce from Goodall. He was given rights of visitation in an agreement providing arbitration if a dispute arose.

In her action, Mrs. Bruce is seeking to compel Goodall to arbitrate her wish to take the child to England. Goodall contends that the custody agreement specifically prohibits either party from taking the girl out of the country and that consequently there is no arbitratable issue.

Mrs. Bruce's petition said in part:

"In December, 1951, I married my present husband, Eldridge Bruce. He is a Negro. Bettine and I are not. We decided that while he attended Howard University Bettine's well being would be best served if he and I lived apart, I in my home in Huntington (N. Y.) and he at Howard University, rather than together in a segregated community in or near Washington . . . accordingly, we have lived apart since our marriage, a sacrifice we were willing to make . . . for Bettine."

Studies Child Psychology

At the time of their marriage, she said, Bruce was studying for a degree in psychology at Howard. She added that he was graduated in June and is now studying child psychology at the University of London.

Her petition continued that they had purchased a house in Bromley, near London. She said Bromley is "a non-segregated community" and added:

"We are expecting a baby in December. I intend to join Mr. Bruce at our new home in Bromley as soon as I can so that we can be together when the baby arrives."

Mrs. Bruce asserted that she is "convinced to the point of a moral certainty that if Bettine at her present age were to be separated from me for any appreciable time her happiness and well being and in all probability her health would suffer."

Messenger Is Robbed

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—A pay roll messenger was held up and robbed of $10,000 by two daring bandits on a street in downtown Greenwich Village today. The victim was Max Krochmal, an employe of the Acweltone Corp., who had just drawn the money from an office of the Clinton Trust Company. The holdup men, who wore dark glasses as partial masks, escaped. The robbery occurred in front of 68 King street.

Milk Industry Scotches Reports

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—The milk industry threw cold water today on reports of an early end to the fresh milk drouth in the metropolitan area.

Irving R. Wisch, top negotiator for some 200 firms serving 12 million persons said bargaining talks in two-day-old walkout "have been hampered and set back" by the reports.

"The newspapers are talking about something we don't know ourselves," he said.

Wisch obviously was angry as he spoke to newsmen just before he went into a meeting of management representatives.

A mediator's report of progress in the wage talks had spurred hopes for a speedy settlement of the strike.

Tractor and Car Accident Occurs

State police of the Ellenville Barracks reported a "slight accident" between a farm tractor and an automobile late yesterday afternoon on Route 52 about two miles west of Pine Bush.

They said the 1944 tractor, operated by Everett Carr of RD1, Pine Bush, traveling east at five MPH and turning north into the Wallkill road, was struck on the drawbar by a car also traveling east. Troopers L. J. Hagan and R. Burgess, who investigated, reported that the car, operated by Milton Schonbrun, 35, of Ellenville, was attempting to pass on the left when Schonbrun saw that the tractor was turning left. He veered right, troopers said, his left front fender striking the drawbar of the tractor.

Passengers in the car, besides Schonbrun, were his wife, Jeannette, 31, two sons, Richard, nine, and William seven, and a daughter, Susan, two. There were no injuries, troopers said, and no arrests.

Four Teen Agers Are Held by Police

Four local 'teen-agers, reported missing from their homes since Sunday were picked up at Greensburg, Pa., about 15 miles southeast of Pittsburgh, when the car in which they were riding broke down, local police learned today.

Police were notified yesterday that the four: Joseph Banks, 17, of 93 Newkirk avenue; Jacqueline Mergendahl, 17, same address; Shirley Williams, 19, of 9 Maple street, and another boy whose age was given as 14, left the city in a coupe, owned by Banks' father.

Headed West

The information indicated that all were dressed in dungarees, and their direction on the trip at the time they were picked up by authorities at Greensburg indicated they were headed west.

A police message from Greensburg said they were being held in a juvenile delinquency home pending their return to this city. Local police notified their parents.

Five Teen-Agers Held for Damage

Over the past weekend acts of vandalism have been reported at the Hurley School and those responsible for the acts have been identified and appropriate action is to be taken by the authorities.

Monday Samuel Vaughn, president of the board of trustees of the village, reported to Sheriff Cluett Schantz that the school property had been entered on Friday night and again on Sunday and considerable damage done to the school building and the play area. Sheriff Schantz assigned County Investigator Arthur Brown to the case.

Admit to Damage

Monday five 'teen-age boys were located who admitted to Brown having had a part in the acts and of having damaged the property of Hurley School District No. 4. One of the youths was a student at the Hurley School, two are students at the M.J.M. School in Kingston and two are Kingston High School students. Prompt action on the part of Sheriff Schantz in assigning an investigator to the job and the alert action of Brown quickly brought to justice all the persons involved, authorities said.

Late Bulletin

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri stepped into the three-day-old milk strike today and called an immediate city hall meeting of top union and company officials.

"It is imperative," the mayor said in a statement, "that responsible bargaining proceed without a moment's delay."

Earlier a top milk industry representative had dashed hopes for a quick end to the fresh milk drouth that has hit 12 million persons in a two-state metropolitan area.

Spurred by a mediator's statement that "some tangible progress" was being made in peace talks, rumors circulated that an agreement would be reached today, to be followed by deliveries of milk tomorrow and a price hike the day after.

Strike Vote Authorized

New York, Oct. 28 (AP) — A strike vote among 2,300 men who handle and deliver the city's newspapers was authorized at a union membership meeting last night. If a strike is voted, it would take place at midnight next Saturday and affect deliveries of nine major newspapers.

Democratic Aides Hear Speeches by Kelly, Coughlin

During a meeting of the Democratic Women's Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel Tuesday night, addresses were made by William A. Kelly, secretary of the Democratic County Committee, and Thomas F. Coughlin, Democratic candidate for alderman-at-large.

Following are excerpts of Kelly's talk:

"For more than 19 years I have been a practicing attorney here in the City of Kingston, and so I believe I have a fairly good idea of how a lawyer conducts the practice of his profession. I think that I have also some reasonable conception of the many and varied problems with which the average lawyer is faced, even one who is engaged in private practice without any outside political position.

Since the Republican candidate for Mayor is a busy, practicing attorney I would like to discuss with you this question: Should the voters of the City of Kingston elect, as Mayor, a candidate who is a lawyer? I firmly believe that the people should not elect a lawyer as Mayor. May I tell you at once that there is absolutely nothing personal in what I am saying to you! The Republican candidate for Mayor and I are friends, and have been friendly for some years. But my belief is shared by many people. In fact, the Kingston Daily Freeman once carried an editorial advising the voters to elect a businessman, not a lawyer, for Mayor, and giving reasons for such position.

My point simply is, that no lawyer, regardless of who he is, should be Mayor of this city. The reasons are fairly simple. The management of a one and a half million dollar corporation such as the City of Kingston unquestionably requires the full time services of its Mayor. This city cannot be properly managed or operated on any part time basis."

Talk by Coughlin

Following are excerpts of Coughlin's address:

"The people of the 7th Ward have honored me on five different occasions by electing me to your Common Council. I am appearing before you now as a candidate for Alderman-at-Large. I consider this a great honor. I feel that having served my apprenticeship in the Common Council I am qualified to seek the Presidency of that body.

Though elected as an Alderman from the 7th Ward, I have always fought and worked in the interest of the entire city.

The Republican candidate for mayor has implied that he favors a sale of part of the city's water supply, Reservoir No. 1; the Democratic candidate for mayor promptly repudiated that proposal. I, too, repudiate such a proposal. What has the Republican candidate for alderman-at-large to say on the matter? Does he favor the sale of part of the city's water supply? If he does, let him make his position clear. If he does not approve, let him say so. Does the Republican candidate for alderman-at-large have as little faith in the development of our city as apparently his own candidate for mayor has?

Believe me, I would always oppose the sale of city-owned property, whether a source of water supply, or anything else, unless it was absolutely necessary. I believe in our city; I have faith in its future expansion."

This school is supported completely by the Brazilian church who contribute money, rice, beans, fruits and sugar to support the students.

Newsom Praises Benson

Elmira, Oct. 28 (AP)—Herschel D. Newsom, master of the National Grange says Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson "is doing the best he can with the machinery available."

Mrs. Bruce Seeks To Join Husband; Petitions Court

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—Mrs. Bettine Field Bruce, daughter of publisher and department store magnate Marshall Field, is seeking court permission to take her daughter by a pervious marriage to England to rejoin her present husband, a Negro.

The 30-year-old Mrs. Bruce says that because of racial difference she did not elect to live with her husband, Eldridge Bruce, 34, in "a segregated community" in Washington, D. C., while he was studying at Howard University.

However, she says he is now studying in London and that they have bought a home in England in "a non-segregated community."

Mrs. Bruce's action was disclosed yesterday in New York Supreme Court. It concerns her daughter, Bettine Goodall, 9, by her marriage to Dr. McChesney Goodall Jr., a Yale Medical School professor.

Won Girl's Custody

Custody of the girl was given Mrs. Bruce in 1947 when she obtained a Nevada divorce from Goodall. He was given rights of visitation in an agreement providing arbitration if a dispute arose.

In her action, Mrs. Bruce is seeking to compel Goodall to arbitrate her wish to take the child to England. Goodall contends that the custody agreement specifically prohibts either party from taking the girl out of the country and that consequently there is no arbitratable issue.

Mrs. Bruce's petition said in part:

"In December, 1951, I married my present husband, Eldridge Bruce. He is a Negro. Bettine and I are not. We decided that while he attended Howard University Bettine's well being would be best served if he and I lived apart, I in my home in Huntington (N. Y.) and he at Howard University, rather than together in a segregated community in or near Washington . . . accordingly, we have lived apart since our marriage, a sacrifice we were willing to make . . . for Bettine."

Studies Child Psychology

At the time of their marriage, she said, Bruce was studying for a degree in psychology at Howard. She added that he was graduated in June and is now studying child psychology at the University of London.

Her petition continued that they had purchased a house in Bromley, near London. She said Bromley is "a non-segregated community" and added:

"We are expecting a baby in December. I intend to join Mr. Bruce at our new home in Bromley as soon as I can so that we can be together when the baby arrives."

Mrs. Bruce asserted that she is "convinced to the point of a moral certainty that if Bettine at her present age were to be separated from me for any appreciable time her happiness and well being and in all probability her health would suffer."

Messenger Is Robbed

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—A pay roll messenger was held up and robbed of $10,000 by two daring bandits on a street in downtown Greenwich Village today. The victim was Max Krochmal, an employe of the Acweltone Corp., who had just drawn the money from an office of the Clinton Trust Company. The holdup men, who wore dark glasses as partial masks, escaped. The robbery occurred in front of 68 King street.

Milk Industry Scotches Reports

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—The milk industry threw cold water today on reports of an early end to the fresh milk drouth in the metropolitan area.

Irving R. Wisch, top negotiator for some 200 firms serving 12 million persons said bargaining talks in two-day-old walkout "have been hampered and set back" by the reports.

"The newspapers are talking about something we don't know ourselves," he said.

Wisch obviously was angry as he spoke to newsmen just before he went into a meeting of management representatives.

A mediator's report of progress in the wage talks had spurred hopes for a speedy settlement of the strike.

Tractor and Car Accident Occurs

State police of the Ellenville Barracks reported a "slight accident" between a farm tractor and an automobile late yesterday afternoon on Route 52 about two miles west of Pine Bush.

They said the 1944 tractor, operated by Everett Carr of RD1, Pine Bush, traveling east at five MPH and turning north into the Wallkill road, was struck on the drawbar by a car also traveling east. Troopers L. J. Hagan and R. Burgess, who investigated, reported that the car, operated by Milton Schonbrun, 35, of Ellenville, was attemping to pass on the left when Schonbrun saw that the tractor was turning left. He veered right, troopers said, his left front fender striking the drawbar of the tractor.

Passengers in the car, besides Schonbrun, were his wife, Jeannette, 31, two sons, Richard, nine, and William seven, and a daughter, Susan, two. There were no injuries, troopers said, and no arrests.

Four Teen Agers Are Held by Police

Four local 'teen-agers, reported missing from their homes since Sunday were picked up at Greensburg, Pa., about 15 miles southeast of Pittsburgh, when the car in which they were riding broke down, local police learned today.

Police were notified yesterday that the four: Joseph Banks, 17, of 93 Newkirk avenue; Jacqueline Mergendahl, 17, same address; Shirley Williams, 19, of 9 Maple street, and another boy whose age was given as 14, left the city in a coupe, owned by Banks' father.

Headed West

The information indicated that all were dressed in dungarees, and their direction on the trip at the time they were picked up by authorities at Greensburg indicated they were headed west.

A police message from Greensburg said they were being held in a juvenile delinquency home pending their return to this city. Local police notified their parents.

Dewey Dispute With Wicks Is No Crucial Test

Under the title, "Not a Crucial Test," the Dunkirk Evening Observer commented editorially as follows on the Dewey-Wicks dispute:

Senator Wicks was selected for the state Senate by the voters of his district. He has become acting lieutenant-governor through the vote of the Senate. His term in that position will be tested at a special session.

Because Senator Wicks called on a man of some influence who is serving a term in prison it was suggested that he resign. Governor Dewey advised and urged that resignation. There, we should think, the responsibility of the governor ought to end. Whether Wicks continues as a senator is up to the people. Whether he continues to hold a responsible place in the Senate is up to the Senate. Dewey has no constitutional power in the matter.

Nevertheless it is said that Dewey's whole political future is at stake on the issue because the action of the Senate in respect to Wicks will be seen as a test of leadership. Now it was never intended in any American theory of government that the executive should dominate and dictate to the Legislature. We need leadership, but that is far short of domination. The test of a man's fitness for high office should not be whether he can control a legislative body for that body is composed of the direct representatives of the people. Even our very strongest Presidents have suffered defeat from time to time at the hands of the legislators. Roosevelt who was accustomed to rubber-stamp Congresses could not carry the court-packing issue.

We are getting rather strange ideas of government when we conclude that the failure of an executive to dominate the popularly elected legislators on all issues is regarded as conclusive evidence his career is ended. We need executives who are willing to state their convictions and fight for them. But we also need legislators who will make their own decisions in keeping with the powers delegated to them by the people.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By BILLY ROSE

WHEN GREEK MEETS GREEK

If you'll bear with me for a few dullish paragraphs of background material, I think I can make it up to you by telling you an interesting yarn about a wrestler . . .

In 1910 a lad named Christopher Theophelus left his home in Greece and came to America to make his fortune. And, as is usual in Horatio Alger stories, fortune at first played hard to get.

Chris lived for a while with relatives in Boston, then went to San Francisco where he washed dishes in hash houses, ran errands in its Chinatown and, when he was 18, became the "bottom man" in a tumbling act which played the West Coast variety theatres.

At 20, the youth became a professional wrestler and for the next few years won most of his matches. This news delighted his father who was wrestling champion of the Mycenae district of Greece.

In 1920, Theophelus dropped in to see a well-known promoter. "I'd like for you to handle me," he said. "I guess you've heard my name."

"Wouldn't make any difference if I had," said the promoter. "I couldn't pronounce it anyhow."

So Christopher Theophelus became Jim Londos, the Golden Greek, and, as the record books will attest, a thousand matches later he won the world title.

So much for background material . . .

In 1928 Jim Londos returned to Greece where he took on Karol Zybszko, the Athenian champion, and an audience of 70,000, including his father, watched him throw his opponent in record time. In the dressing room after the match, the father put his arm around his son, and said, "Now we go back to Mycenae for the main event."

Londos grinned—he pretty much knew what the old man had in mind.

Nearly everyone in the district was at the station when the famous wrestler arrived, and the mayor made a speech in which he compared Jim to Alexander the Great and gave him all the best of it. Then he announced that the world titleholder had been challenged by the long-time local champ—his father.

The match was held a few days later on a raised platform in an open field and, as was the custom on important days, the spectators were dressed in traditional peasant costumes. The mayor, of course, made another speech and then the two men climbed into the ring, shook hands and began to circle each other.

For half an hour it was quite a match, for the old man was wise in the ways of the sport and kept breaking out of his son's fanciest holds. Finally, however, Londos managed to get a combination hammerlock and toehold on his father and, though the oldster gave it all he had, his body began to buckle. A few minutes later, sweat pouring from his body, his shoulders touched the mat.

As the shouting started, the mayor climbed back into the ring. "Now, the ancient ceremony," he announced. "The loser must carry the winner to his home."

The father got to his feet, walked over to his son, picked him up and held him straight-arm over his head. Then, followed by a cheering mob, he walked through the streets of the village and up the rocky hillside to his house. When he set his 210-pound boy down on the threshold, the smile on his face was a pleasant thing to see.

"I've been waiting for this all my life, Christopher," he said. "Now you are the champion."

And Jim Londos knew that by "champion" the aged wrestler was not referring to minor titles such as "Champion of the World."

Remedial Reading Explained to Lions By Principal Boyd

Ambrose J. Boyd, principal of George Washington School, was the speaker at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Lions Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Tuesday.

Discussing the curriculum on grade school level, Boyd told of the importance of reading as a subject, and outlined the recent theories of education on that matter, including the remedial redding courses. He noted that formerly it was felt that once a certain level in reading was attained, that was as far as anyone could go in the subject. Now, he said, reading is recognized as a continuing process the same as other forms of learning.

Basic Things

An interesting point brought out by Boyd was the progress made in the world in the span of years between the time an individual enters kindergarten and the time he riches middle age. Our own primary teachers, he said, could never have expected that we would be living in an atomic age. Children who entered kindergarten this September, he pointed out, will be the middle aged men and women of the year 2,000, he said, indicating that no one can fortell what life will be like then and how children of today can best be prepared for it.

Whatever the age, Boyd said, there are certain basic things of value which should be instilled in youngsters, among them, "love of truth, pride in accomplishments, and faith in themselves."

Good Taste Today

By EMILY POST
(Author of Etiquette, Children Are People, etc.)

UNTHINKING MOTHER

A reader today explains: "I would very much like to have your opinion of the following incident which occurred yesterday when my daughter and I were returning from a shopping tour. After walking around all afternoon I was very tired and couldn't wait to get on the bus to sit down. However, the bus was very crowded and there wasn't a vacant seat. Toward the back of the bus, a young woman was seated with her small child next to her. I asked the mother if she would please hold the child on her lap and let me sit down. I thought I was quite within my rights in my request as children under a certain age ride free of charge and are not entitled to a seat. My daughter was very much embarrassed and said that I was out of order in doing this. I would appreciate your opinion in the matter."

As the mother didn't volunteer to take the child on her lap, you were within your rights. It certainly was an expected courtesy on her part.

Postponed Wedding

Dear Mrs. Post: My daughter had to postpone her wedding because of the death of her father. The invitations has already been sent out and a notice of postponement was sent to each guest. The wedding will take place within a month and I would like to know how to go about informing the guests of the new wedding date. Is it necessary to have new invitations engraved?

Answer: You merely send a notice similar to the one you sent postponing it.

Silver Wedding Anniversary

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I received an invitation to a neighbor's silver wedding anniversary. Since we have known these neighbors only a short time, I was wondering if a gift of silver is necessary or if it would be just as proper to send flowers?

Answer: Since you have known them only so short a time, it is not necessary that you send anything. However, if you would like to do so, get a small piece of silver (plated, if not sterling) equal to the price of the flowers. It would be nicer because it is more permanent.

* * *

Should a lady offer her hand when greeting friends or being introduced? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. However, her leaflet E-17, "Introductions," answers these questions. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to Dept. EP, c/o The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Good Taste Today

UNTHINKING MOTHER

A reader today explains: "I would very much like to have your opinion of the following incident which occurred yesterday when my daughter and I were returning from a shopping tour. After walking around all afternoon I was very tired and couldn't wait to get on the bus to sit down. However, the bus was very crowded and there wasn't a vacant seat. Toward the back of the bus, a young woman was seated with her small child next to her. I asked the mother if she would please hold the child on her lap and let me sit down. I thought I was quite within my rights in my request as children under a certain age ride free of charge and are not entitled to a seat. My daughter was very much embarrassed and said that I was out of order in doing this. I would appreciate your opinion in the matter."

As the mother didn't volunteer to take the child on her lap, you were within your rights. It certainly was an expected courtesy on her part.

Postponed Wedding

Dear Mrs. Post: My daughter had to postpone her wedding because of the death of her father. The invitations has already been sent out and a notice of postponement was sent to each guest. The wedding will take place within a month and I would like to know how to go about informing the guests of the new wedding date. Is it necessary to have new invitations engraved?

Answer: You merely send a notice similar to the one you sent postponing it.

Silver Wedding Anniversary

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I received an invitation to a neighbor's silver wedding anniversary. Since we have known these neighbors only a short time, I was wondering if a gift of silver is necessary or if it would be just as proper to send flowers?

Answer: Since you have known them only so short a time, it is not necessary that you send anything. However, if you would like to do so, get a small piece of silver (plated, if not sterling) equal to the price of the flowers. It would be nicer because it is more permanent.

Local Women Attend Girl Scout Meeting Held in Cincinnati

The Girls Scouts of the U. S. A. will make special efforts in the next two years to reach the thousands of girls who need Scouting and are asking for it, according to a resolution adopted at the 32nd national convention of the organization at its closing session in Cincinnati, Ohio, October 21, Mrs. Kenneth E. Martin of Kingston, delegate to the convention from Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts, Inc., said today.

Others who represented the Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts, Inc., included Mrs. Hubert DuBois and Mrs. William Heidgerd of New Paltz.

The convention heard a battery of distinguished speakers present the needs of girls today and suggest ways in which Girl Scouting can help girls prepare for citizenship. Messages from both President and Mrs. Eisenhower, praising the work of the organization in this country and abroad, were read at the opening session. Mrs. Eisenhower is honorary president of the Girls Scouts and her two nieces are members of a Washington, D. C. troop.

Dr. Ethel J. Alpenfels of New York, anthropologist and educator, and Mrs. Oswald B. Lord, United States Representative on the United Nations Commission on Human Rights, outlined to the convention the need to build understanding among groups in our own country and throughout the world. In line with this, it was reported that the 32 nation World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts is working with Scout groups in Latin America and in the Near and Far East where the position of women has hitherto made it difficult for a citizenship-training movement like Scouting to spread.

A new world friendship project for Girl Scouts, Kits for Korea was launched at the convention, Mrs. DuBois said. Girl Scouts will make gaily-colored drawstring bags and fill them with the essentials that are almost completely lacking in Korea: needles, pins, thread, comb, toothbrush, soap and similar items. The project was developed in cooperation with the Girl Scouts of Korea and American Relief for Korea which will act as shipping agent.

One of the features of the convention, Mrs. DuBois stated, was a men's luncheon attended by 550 of the more than 30,000 men who are registered members of the Girl Scouts of the USA. Miss Helen Hayes, stage star and member of the Girl Scout Council of Greater New York, addressed the luncheon and later spoke briefly to the full convention. Miss Hayes pointed out that Girl Scouting is "a man-sized job" and that more and more men are finding that it's fun to work with their daughters as well as with their sons.

The Lady Baden-Powell, London, England, widow of Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy and Girl Scout movements, was the speaker at a special supper for the teen-age Senior Girl Scouts who attended the convention. She also made the principal address at the closing session. Other guests from abroad included representatives from Scout movements in Canada, Australia, Norway, Switzerland, Pakistan, Jamaica, Belgium, Panama.

Mrs. Layton was reelected national president of the organization for a second two-year term. The next national convention, Mrs. DuBois said, will be held in San Francisco, California, November 1-4, 1955.

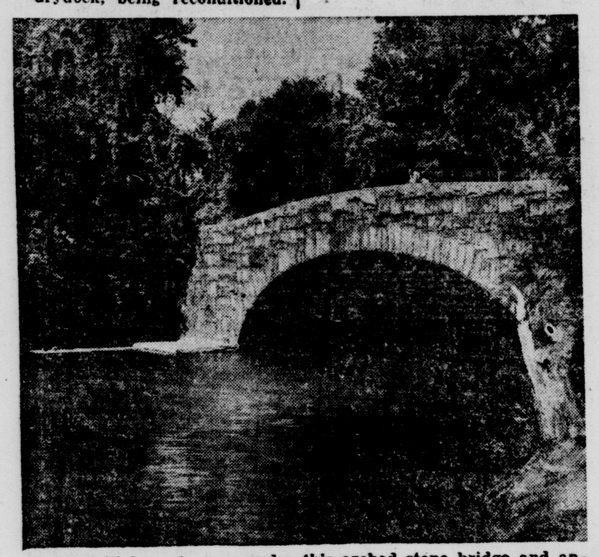
Problem: To Get a U-Boat Under Three Low Bridges

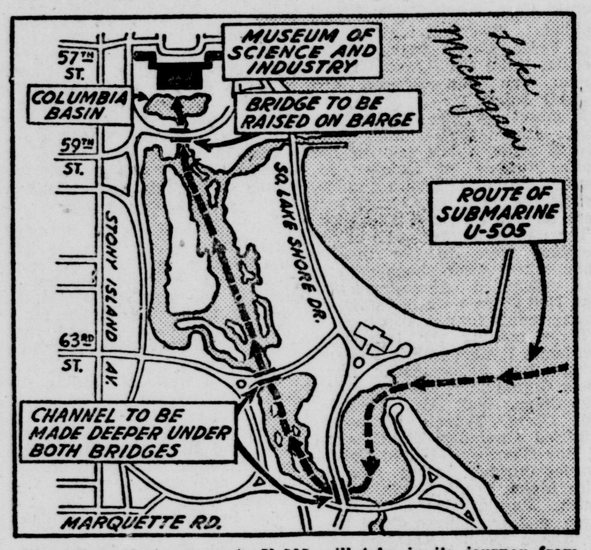
How does a submarine get under low, fixed bridges? Easy, you say. It submerges. Not—however—the U-505. This submarine, soon to be brought into Chicago's Jackson Park, no longer operates under water. To get it past the low bridges to the Museum of Science and Industry, where it will be displayed as a memorial to the war dead of the Central States, other methods must be used. The bridge at lower left, below, links two park harbors. Here the channel will be dredged deep enough for the sub to float under the bridge with just inches to spare. At another, similar bridge, the same system will be used. Trickiest job is the one planned for the bridge shown below in artist's conception at upper right. Because this bridge is metal and has no arch, it is possible to cut the bridge free and lift it off its abutments. A barge, with cradle of timbers, will slide under it and tote it away. This is cheaper than dredging. Another barge will tow the U-boat through.

U-505 in Portsmouth, N. H., drydock, being reconditioned.

Artist's version of how barge (with cradle of timber) will lift bridge before towing it off. Another barge will tow the submarine through.



U-505 will have to pass under this arched stone bridge and another like it. Channels will be dredged so sub can pass under.



Map shows tortuous route U-505 will take in its journey from Lake Michigan to its berth in Columbia Basin in Jackson Park.

Personal Finance Sets 'Reopening' Thursday

The "reopening" of the refurbished Personal Finance Company office located at 319 Wall street will be held Thursday between 7:30 and 9 p. m., George M. Carpenter, manager, has announced.

While the firm's local office was being completely renovated, business has been transacted as usual.

Carpenter, who has been with Personal Finance for nearly 16 years, has returned to the local office after being assigned to special work at Poughkeepsie from March of this year until a few weeks ago. He replaced Vincent Berardi who has been appointed manager of the firm's Haverstraw office.

Carpenter has issued a cordial invitation to the public to attend Thursday's inspection.

Loaded Officials

Olympia, Wash. (AP)—Two officials of the town of Milton soon may be able to stop taking their work home with them. An examiner for the state auditor has requested the town's mayor to have the city hall vault repaired immediately. He said the vault has been "unusuable and unused" since the building was constructed five years ago. "It has been necessary for the treasurer and collector to carry the town funds with them at all times—a dangerous and undesirable practice," the examiner declared.

"I'd like to tell the whole world how I finally got relief from constipation! Especially since I tried so many laxatives and didn't get the relief I wanted!

"On a friend's suggestion, I bought some Sal Hepatica at the drugstore. The next time I had that logy, headachy feeling due to constipation, I took a glass of sparkling Sal Hepatica a half hour before supper. And, by bedtime, believe me, I felt fit as a fiddle!"

Yes, take sparkling Sal Hepatica before breakfast and feel fine again . . . usually within an hour. Or, take it in the evening one-half hour before supper and feel fine again by bedtime! Sweetens sour stomach, too! So keep Sal Hepatica handy in your medicine chest.

What About Service?

A Good Question if you're in the market for modern Electrical Home Appliances such as Refrigerators, Dishwashers, Automatic Clothes Washers, etc.

Today's appliances are marvelous in design and marvelous in the work they perform . . . but, marvelous as they are, there sometimes comes a time when a gismo sticks or a doodad runs backward. And then you call "Mr. Fixit."

Who is "Mr. Fixit" where you buy?

Perhaps he is a fellow around the place who likes to "tinker" with mechanical things.

Today's appliances are PRECISION-BUILT—quite beyond the range of the "tinkerer's" knowledge. And perhaps the tinkerer's pay-rate is much too high for your pocketbook . . . because his training hours are spent in your home—at your expense!

Asbury History

In 1771, the earliest days of Methodism, John Wesley, father of Methodism in England, ordained Francis Asbury and sent him to America as the first bishop in this country. In turn, John Crawford was ordained a minister by Bishop Asbury. In his records the Rev. Crawford writes that in 1789 he attended a conference in New York and after waiting anxiously to hear where he would be assigned finally was appointed to a circuit which included Yankeetown, now Palenville, West Camp which is now, in part, known as Ausbury, Kiskatom and High Falls.

He was delighted with his appointment to the area, which he called "historic" and enjoyed the beauty of the sublime Catskills.

Moves to West Camp

Not long after his appointment John Crawford was sent to live on a 100-acre farm in West Camp. Some years later he deeded a piece of the farm to the Methodist Episcopal organization for a church and cemetery, and that part of West Camp became knawn as Crawford's.

Within a week of deeding the land a church was started.

In the meantime Bishop Asbury came to visit his friends, the Crawfords, and since the church had not progressed sufficiently for an official dedication, work was stopped long enough for the bishop to offer a prayer of dedication.

The name, Crawford's, was then dropped and the place was called Asbury in honor of Bishop Asbury.

Asbury History

In 1771, the earliest days of Methodism, John Wesley, father of Methodism in England, ordained Francis Asbury and sent him to America as the first bishop in this country. In turn, John Crawford was ordained a minister by Bishop Asbury. In his records the Rev. Crawford writes that in 1789 he attended a conference in New York and after waiting anxiously to hear where he would be assigned finally was appointed to a circuit which included Yankeetown, now Palenville, West Camp which is now, in part, known as Ausbury, Kiskatom and High Falls.

He was delighted with his appointment to the area, which he called "historic" and enjoyed the beauty of the sublime Catskills.

Moves to West Camp

Not long after his appointment John Crawford was sent to live on a 100-acre farm in West Camp. Some years later he deeded a piece of the farm to the Methodist Episcopal organization for a church and cemetery, and that part of West Camp became knawn as Crawford's.

Within a week of deeding the land a church was started.

In the meantime Bishop Asbury came to visit his friends, the Crawfords, and since the church had not progressed sufficiently for an official dedication, work was stopped long enough for the bishop to offer a prayer of dedication.

The name, Crawford's, was then dropped and the place was called Asbury in honor of Bishop Asbury.

After the death of the Rev. Mr. Crawford, who lies in the cemetery he deeded, the Asbury Church stood empty for many years.

Grange Is Formed

In 1916 a small group of rural folks gathered in the tiny Asbury schoolhouse for the purpose of forming a Grange. I. C. Barnes of New Paltz, installing master to this day, helped to organize the Grange and installed the first officers.

A committee was assigned to find a permanent meeting place for the Grange and after three years of tireless effort the Methodist Episcopal organization sold the church and deeded it to the Grange members. It was known from that time as Asbury Grange No. 1408.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Experts Are Often Guilty of Errors

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

If you think that only beginners misuse the Blackwood Convention, you are quite wrong. Today's hand was played in the European Championships last August at Helsinki, and the Swiss team was clumsy enough to perpetrate the bidding shown in the diagram.

It could have been worse, too. South cannot be sure that North has even one ace. North might have king-queen-jack in each of the three highest suits and would surely have a fine opening bid—but the enemy would take three aces.

The rule for the Blackwood Convention when your best suit is a minor is very simple. You must have two aces of your own. Then if your partner bids five clubs to show no aces, you can stop at the elevel of five. And if your partner makes any other response you are still in control of the situation.

It would be pleasant to report that justice triumphed—that the Swiss players were justly punished for their awkward bidding. But the truth is quite otherwise. South made his slam.

West opened the king of diamonds and then tried the ace of diamonds. It wasn't a good idea, although it was hard for West to know.

South ruffed the second diamond and ran every single one of his trumps, saving three hearts in the dummy. South's own last three cards were two spades and a heart.

Just try to find three good cards for East to save. He needs the ace of spades, and he needs three hearts to the queen. When the hand was actually played, East finally threw the ace of spades in the hope that his partner had the nine and could thus control the suit. South thereupon cashed the nine of spades and took the last two tricks with dummy's ace and king of hearts.

The gallery applauded, for it was a beautiful recovery for South, but the Swiss declarer had the grace to look sheepish over the way he had bid the hand.

J. C. Watson Dies

Albany, Oct. 28 (AP)—John C. Watson, who combined careers in law, business and education, died yesterday in St. Peter's Hospital. He was 67. He was assistant dean of the Albany Law College 13 years. Watson also served as counsel to the New York State Council of Retail Merchants of which he was once president. Other posts formerly held by Watson were vice chairman of the State Temporary Highway Finance Planning Commission, president of the board of trustees of the State Institute of Applied Arts and Sciences at Utica, now a community college, and vice president of the National Retail Dry Goods Association. Watson was born in Lisbon, St. Lawrence county.

SHOKAN NEWS

Shokan, Oct. 27—Mr. and Mrs. Herman Krom of Kingston were callers here Thursday. Herman as a young man was employed as assistant agent and telegraph operator at the Ulster & Delaware Railroad's Shokan station and later was in charge of the Hunter depot for 16 years. A talented singer, Herman was a member of the Baptist Church choir when Mrs. Watson Bishop, grandmother of Donald Bishop, was organist of the church.

Rudolph Juralek is making good progress towards the completion of a sizeable addition to his Onteora Trail cottage.

Members of the local state highways crew spent most of last week filling in eroded shoulders on the road between Winchell's Corners and the railroad viaduct. Joe Haver, foreman of the crew has been on vacation.

Report has it that the Irvin Carlson place along the East Butternutkill is up for sale again. The old stone house property was sold last summer by Elizabeth Angell who with her sons now resides in Rensselaer county.

Robert Merrihew, one of the few remaining old timers in the Brodhead sector of Olive, is having a birthday Tuesday, Oct. 27. Rob was born at Olive Bridge, son of Dewitt and Lottie (Eckert) Merrihew. An expert stone mason by trade, he is married to the former Emma Davis of Tongore.

George Taylor who has a home at Wittenberg and goes to Winter Haven, Fla., each winter, was a caller in the village Friday. He was accompanied by David West of Kingston.

Clean Garden Hose

Your garden hose should be cleaned with a sudsy cloth and rinsed, not left dirty and twisted over the winter. It is a good idea to hang the hose well-coiled against the wall. This helps dry it after each use and the rubber or plastic tubing will last longer.

Kims Purchase John Burroughs Roxbury Home

Mr. and Mrs. David C. Kim recently purchased the Burroughs Homestead in Roxbury, which was the birthplace and boyhood home of John Burroughs, famous naturalist.

Henry Ford some years ago purchased the home of the noted student of nature and at Ford's death it was re-purchased by Julian Burroughs of West Park, son of the naturalist.

The sale was negotiated by Henry O. Neher of Port Ewen.

Came From Korea

Mr. Kim was born in Korea, but came to this country to study. It was in Drew University that he met Agnes M. Davis, who later became Mrs. Kim. After studying in several universities and earning a number of degrees, Mr. Kim returned to Korea to prepare a home for Miss Davis, who went out to Korea two years later. Miss Davis after receiving her Masters Degree from Columbia University taught Industrial Arts in Lincoln School, which at that time was the experimental school of Teachers College, Columbia University. She left this position to go to Korea to be married.

Mr. and Mrs. Kim carried on a community social work in Korea. Mr. Kim started both adult and children schools, a credit association among the farmers, animal husbandry clubs and was the headman of his village in relation to the government, which was then under Japanese occupation rule. Mrs. Kim ran a clinic with the help of internes from Severence Medical School and Hospital. A descriptive account of all these activities is told in the book written by Mrs. Kim, which was published last May—"I Married a Korean" by Agnes Davis Kim. The book not only tells of their work but gives an intimate picture of Korean life from the inside.

War Affected Plans

Mr. and Mrs. Kim with their son had returned to America for more study when World War 2 struck. They were not able to get back to Korea until the end of the war. In the meantime Mr. Kim acted as translator and interpretor for trials in Japanese detention camps and also as examiner of Japanese, Korean and Chinese mail in the censorship port of New York. He then served for about a year in the office of strategic services with the U. S. Army in China and became an American citizen.

After the war's termination, Mr. Kim and their son returned to Korea, which was then under American occupation. Mr. Kim had charge of training and testing the 130 Korean speakers who went all over South Korea teaching about the difference between democracy and communism and preparing the population to vote in their first election. Mrs. Kim taught Arts and Craft in the Seoul American School for army children. When the army was about to withdraw from Korea, civilians were sent out ahead and the Kim family returned to America. Since then Mr. Kim has worked with the Voice of America, translating and writing material for broadcast and producing for some of the programs beamed to Korea.

Up until they bought the Burroughs homestead, the residence of the Kims was in Millwood, Westchester county.

Dresed-Up Fruit Bowl

There's an art to serving fresh fruit for dessert. Apples should be washed and rubbed with a soft towel until they are shiny. Pears, too, should be rinsed and then lightly polished with a towel. Grapes should be rinsed in cold water, dried on a soft towel and then cut into serving-size bunches. If you have a grape scissors to place on your fruit bowl, it is not necessary to pre-cut the fruit. Ivy or huckleberry leaves around the edge of your fruit bowl will make it most attractive.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Experts Are Often Guilty of Errors

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

If you think that only beginners misuse the Blackwood Convention, you are quite wrong. Today's hand was played in the European Championships last August at Helsinki, and the Swiss team was clumsy enough to perpetrate the bidding shown in the diagram.

It could have been worse, too. South cannot be sure that North has even one ace. North might have king-queen-jack in each of the three highest suits and would surely have a fine opening bid—but the enemy would take three aces.

The rule for the Blackwood Convention when your best suit is a minor is very simple. You must have two aces of your own. Then if your partner bids five clubs to show no aces, you can stop at the elevel of five. And if your partner makes any other response you are still in control of the situation.

It would be pleasant to report that justice triumphed—that the Swiss players were justly punished for their awkward bidding. But the truth is quite otherwise. South made his slam.

West opened the king of diamonds and then tried the ace of diamonds. It wasn't a good idea,

	NORTH (D) 28 ♠ K Q 10 8 ♥ A K J 2 ♦ 8 7 6 ♣ 9 3
WEST ♠ 7 4 3 2 ♥ 9 8 7 6 ♦ A K 10 4 2 ♣ None		EAST ♠ A J 5 ♥ Q 10 4 3 ♦ Q J 9 5 ♣ 8 5
	SOUTH ♠ 9 6 ♥ 5 ♦ 3 ♣ A K Q J 10 7 6 4 2

North-South vul.

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	4 N.T. (!)	Pass
5 ♦	Pass	6 ♣	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♦ K

although it was hard for West to know.

South ruffed the second diamond and ran every single one of his trumps, saving three hearts in the dummy. South's own last three cards were two spades and a heart.

Just try to find three good cards for East to save. He needs the ace of spades, and he needs three hearts to the queen. When the hand was actually played, East finally threw the ace of spades in the hope that his partner had the nine and could thus control the suit. South thereupon cashed the nine of spades and took the last two tricks with dummy's ace and king of hearts.

The gallery applauded, for it was a beautiful recovery for South, but the Swiss declarer had the grace to look sheepish over the way he had bid the hand.

J. C. Watson Dies

Albany, Oct. 28 (AP)—John C. Watson, who combined careers in law, business and education, died yesterday in St. Peter's Hospital. He was 67. He was assistant dean of the Albany Law College 13 years. Watson also served as counsel to the New York State Council of Retail Merchants of which he was once president. Other posts formerly held by Watson were vice chairman of the State Temporary Highway Finance Planning Commission, president of the board of trustees of the State Institute of Applied Arts and Sciences at Utica, now a community college, and vice president of the National Retail Dry Goods Association. Watson was born in Lisbon, St. Lawrence county.

Spanish villages in New Mexico were founded before the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock.

SHOKAN NEWS

Shokan, Oct. 27—Mr. and Mrs. Herman Krom of Kingston were callers here Thursday. Herman as a young man was employed as assistant agent and telegraph operator at the Ulster & Delaware Railroad's Shokan station and later was in charge of the Hunter depot for 16 years. A talented singer, Herman was a member of the Baptist Church choir when Mrs. Watson Bishop, grandmother of Donald Bishop, was organist of the church.

Rudolph Juralek is making good progress towards the completion of a sizeable addition to his Onteora Trail cottage.

Members of the local state highways crew spent most of last week filling in eroded shoulders on the road between Winchell's Corners and the railroad viaduct. Joe Haver, foreman of the crew has been on vacation.

Report has it that the Irvin Carlson place along the East Butternutkill is up for sale again. The old stone house property was sold last summer by Elizabeth Angell who with her sons now resides in Rensselaer county.

Robert Merrihew, one of the few remaining old timers in the Brodhead sector of Olive, is having a birthday Tuesday, Oct. 27. Rob was born at Olive Bridge, son of Dewitt and Lottie (Eckert) Merrihew. An expert stone mason by trade, he is married to the former Emma Davis of Tongore.

George Taylor who has a home at Wittenberg and goes to Winter Haven, Fla., each winter, was a caller in the village Friday. He was accompanied by David West of Kingston.

Clean Garden Hose

Your garden hose should be cleaned with a sudsy cloth and rinsed, not left dirty and twisted over the winter. It is a good idea to hang the hose well-coiled against the wall. This helps dry it after each use and the rubber or plastic tubing will last longer.

Kims Purchase John Burroughs Roxbury Home

Mr. and Mrs. David C. Kim recently purchased the Burroughs Homestead in Roxbury, which was the birthplace and boyhood home of John Burroughs, famous naturalist.

Henry Ford some years ago purchased the home of the noted student of nature and at Ford's death it was re-purchased by Julian Burroughs of West Park, son of the naturalist.

The sale was negotiated by Henry O. Neher of Port Ewen.

Came From Korea

Mr. Kim was born in Korea, but came to this country to study. It was in Drew University that he met Agnes M. Davis, who later became Mrs. Kim. After studying in several universities and earning a number of degrees, Mr. Kim returned to Korea to prepare a home for Miss Davis, who went out to Korea two years later. Miss Davis after receiving her Masters Degree from Columbia University taught Industrial Arts in Lincoln School, which at that time was the experimental school of Teachers College, Columbia University. She left this position to go to Korea to be married.

Mr. and Mrs. Kim carried on a community social work in Korea. Mr. Kim started both adult and children schools, a credit association among the farmers, animal husbandry clubs and was the headman of his village in relation to the government, which was then under Japanese occupation rule. Mrs. Kim ran a clinic with the help of internes from Severence Medical School and Hospital. A descriptive account of all these activities is told in the book written by Mrs. Kim, which was published last May—"I Married a Korean" by Agnes Davis Kim. The book not only tells of their work but gives an intimate picture of Korean life from the inside.

War Affected Plans

Mr. and Mrs. Kim with their son had returned to America for more study when World War 2 struck. They were not able to get back to Korea until the end of the war. In the meantime Mr. Kim acted as translator and interpretor for trials in Japanese detention camps and also as examiner of Japanese, Korean and Chinese mail in the censorship port of New York. He then served for about a year in the office of strategic services with the U. S. Army in China and became an American citizen.

After the war's termination, Mr. Kim and their son returned to Korea, which was then under American occupation. Mr. Kim had charge of training and testing the 130 Korean speakers who went all over South Korea teaching about the difference between democracy and communism and preparing the population to vote in their first election. Mrs. Kim taught Arts and Craft in the Seoul American School for army children. When the army was about to withdraw from Korea, civilians were sent out ahead and the Kim family returned to America. Since then Mr. Kim has worked with the Voice of America, translating and writing material for broadcast and producing for some of the programs beamed to Korea.

Up until they bought the Burroughs homestead, the residence of the Kims was in Millwood, Westchester county.

Dresed-Up Fruit Bowl

There's an art to serving fresh fruit for dessert. Apples should be washed and rubbed with a soft towel until they are shiny. Pears, too, should be rinsed and then lightly polished with a towel. Grapes should be rinsed in cold water, dried on a soft towel and then cut into serving-size bunches. If you have a grape scissors to place on your fruit bowl, it is not necessary to pre-cut the fruit. Ivy or huckleberry leaves around the edge of your fruit bowl will make it most attractive.

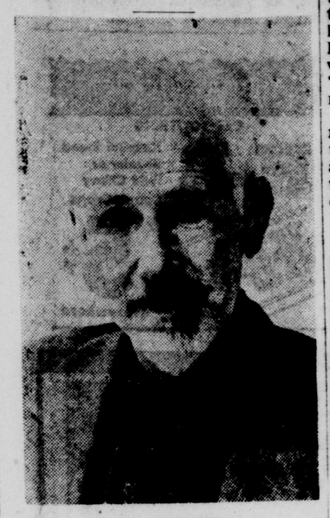
Darrell, of Vly, Has New Book



R. D. DARRELL

R. D. Darrell of The Vly near Stone Ridge is author of a recent Alfred A. Knopf publication, Good Listening, a lively, non-technical book designed as a guide to record-buyers.

Darrell, is one of the world's foremost experts on recordings and sound reproduction, points out that he is writing primarily for those who lack special knowledge or confidence, and especially for the admittedly non-expert— the "novice general listeners."

The book is designed to expand musical horizons, enable the reader to find more music he will like and to select the best long-playing recordings. He constantly urges the reader to develop an informed taste of his own—and then to have complete confidence in it.

Seeks to Guide

The book, consisting of approximately 200 pages, including 37 pages of index-discography in which is listed one recommended long-playing record of each composition mentioned in the book, is not a textbook of musical appreciation, history or theory, as the author is careful to point out. He is concerned rather with the direct impact of music on our ears and mind, in "leading you to works you are likely to enjoy—not in trying to tell you how they were composed or what they mean."

Darrell, who writes delightfully in a light, easily digestible style, eschews condescension and constantly urges the reader to develop an informed taste of his own and then to have complete confidence in it.

Darrell traces briefly the progress found changes which have occurred in musical listening within his memory, pointing out that as a youth it would have taken him several years of regular attendance to hear all of the Beethoven symphonies, whereas today he would have no difficulty in hearing all nine in less than a week of F-M radio listening. "Canned" music, once scorned, is now fully accepted, he states.

He calls attention to the enormous expansion in both the quantity and quality of readily available music and the ease with which listeners are brought into contact with music-makers.

Has Three Parts

The book is divided into three parts, beginning with the "novice's normal, seemingly haphazard, personal approaches to music."

In the second part, with increasing musical familiarity, the systematic planning of a record library and an extension of acquaintanceship to composers of various historical eras is undertaken.

In the third part Darrell attempts to "reconcile these personal and historical approaches, first in locating the specialized reportory where one is most likely to feel musically at home; then in expanding the scope of one's experience along the natural grain of one's own temperament and in learning to listen participatively."

Hundreds of compositions are mentioned but no recordings are discussed in the text itself. These are left for the index-discography.

Darrell was born in Newton, Mass., in 1903, attended the New England Conservatory of Music from 1923 to 1926 at which time he became assistant editor of the Phonograph Monthly Review (Boston).

Publishes Encyclopedia

He became nationally well known with the publication in 1936 of the first Gramophone Shop Encyclopedia of Recorded Music, a pioneering work that instituted the art of discography. In 1939 he was awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship.

In recent years he has developed a special interest in electronics and in high-fidelity sound equipment. He has also written for the Review of Permanent Music, Review of Recorded Music, Down Beat and Saturday Review, and has been discography consultant to the New York Public Library. He is the author of The Highroad to Musical Enjoyment (1943) and editor of Schirmer's Guide to Books on Music and Musicians (1951).

Darrell lives with his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Holmes. The home has been called Balmoral after the name of a village in Nova Scotia, the home of his mother.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

I wonder how many folks remember Wadsworth's stationery store when it was across the street from the present Rondout Savings' Bank Building. In my time, back in the 1920's, he was an old man, who wore a sort of black skull cap but had a wonderful store of stationery items from all over the world, like imported colored pencils and water colors. I was glad to buy items there for my father, but Wadsworth waited on me so quickly that he didn't give me a chance to look around at his precious little boxes of little things. I see in Helen Mann's, Daily Freeman of Friday evening, Oct. 25, 1878, which is 75 years ago this month a Wadsworth advertisement when he was down at 185 Strand. His advertisement read in part: "Blank books and stationery of all kinds. Envelopes and paper, at bottom prices. Ink, pencils, holders, pens, mucilage, paste, etc. Mottoes and frames. Shelf paper, all colors. Convex glass. Winsor and Newton's tube colors. Scrap pictures always in stock. Scrap books, all sizes. Cards with text or plain.

Those were the days that the Thomas Cornell and James W. Baldwin steamers looked a lot like the old Clermont. In those days the fare to New York on them was 75 cents. Excursion tickets were $1.25. No doubt few could answer, "Where and what was China Hall in Kingston?" From this old newspaper I learn China Hall was on Union avenue (now Broadway) near the city hall. It was a store which sold china, table-glass, earthenware and other housekeeping articles. They had new styles of hanging vases and fancy flower pots, also French and German cookingware, as well as wax flower and pond lily shades.

An interesting item in this 1878 Freeman states: "Edison, the phenomenal inventor, is seriously ill at Menlo Park." It so happens that Edison was born in 1847 and in 1878 he was only 41, but he died in 1931 at the age of about 84.

Weather conditions were important in those days also, as related on this paper's front page: "Accounts being received of Wednesday's terrible gale, (Oct. 23, 1878) show that the destruction of property is immense. On the Chesapeake Bay from 30 to 40 vessels were driven ashore and several were wrecked. Two steamers with passengers were among them and many persons were drowned. The loss in Philadelphia, it is estimated, will reach close to $2,000,000 caused by damage done to nearly 300 dwellings and store, 31 churches and 23 schools. About 20 persons were killed and injured there. Our telegraphic news discloses the extent and character of the devastation made," the 75-year-old report said. So far I did not run across any damage from this gale in Kingston or vicinity.

There is mention of a steamer accident because of the high wind and unusually high tide on Wednesday night the steamer C. Vanderbilt on her down trip tried to land at Tivoli, her usual stop. She missed her pier and crashed with the ferryboat Air Line of Saugerties, lying at her dock, and the tug, Hattie, of Malden, which lay alongside of the ferry. Other boats had difficulty because of the high tide as nearly all the docks were submerged bringing the boats way above the dock landing.

It's a mystery how people who have one-track minds can usually manage to get on the wrong track.

R. D. DARRELL

R. D. Darrell of The Vly near Stone Ridge is author of a recent Alfred A. Knopf publication, Good Listening, a lively, non-technical book designed as a guide to record-buyers.

Darrell, is one of the world's foremost experts on recordings and sound reproduction, points out that he is writing primarily for those who lack special knowledge or confidence, and especially for the admittedly non-expert— the "novice general listeners."

The book is designed to expand musical horizons, enable the reader to find more music he will like and to select the best long-playing recordings. He constantly urges the reader to develop an informed taste of his own—and then to have complete confidence in it.

Seeks to Guide

The book, consisting of approximately 200 pages, including 37 pages of index-discography in which is listed one recommended long-playing record of each composition mentioned in the book, is not a textbook of musical appreciation, history or theory, as the author is careful to point out. He is concerned rather with the direct impact of music on our ears and mind, in "leading you to works you are likely to enjoy—not in trying to tell you how they were composed or what they mean."

Darrell, who writes delightfully in a light, easily digestible style, eschews condescension and constantly urges the reader to develop an informed taste of his own and then to have complete confidence in it.

Darrell traces briefly the progress found changes which have occurred in musical listening within his memory, pointing out that as a youth it would have taken him several years of regular attendance to hear all of the Beethoven symphonies, whereas today he would have no difficulty in hearing all nine in less than a week of F-M radio listening. "Canned" music, once scorned, is now fully accepted, he states.

He calls attention to the enormous expansion in both the quantity and quality of readily available music and the ease with which listeners are brought into contact with music-makers.

Has Three Parts

The book is divided into three parts, beginning with the "novice's normal, seemingly haphazard, personal approaches to music."

In the second part, with increasing musical familiarity, the systematic planning of a record library and an extension of acquaintanceship to composers of various historical eras is undertaken.

In the third part Darrell attempts to "reconcile these personal and historical approaches, first in locating the specialized reportory where one is most likely to feel musically at home; then in expanding the scope of one's experience along the natural grain of one's own temperament and in learning to listen participatively."

Hundreds of compositions are mentioned but no recordings are discussed in the text itself. These are left for the index-discography.

Darrell was born in Newton, Mass., in 1903, attended the New England Conservatory of Music from 1923 to 1926 at which time he became assistant editor of the Phonograph Monthly Review (Boston).

Publishes Encyclopedia

He became nationally well known with the publication in 1936 of the first Gramophone Shop Encyclopedia of Recorded Music, a pioneering work that instituted the art of discography. In 1939 he was awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship.

In recent years he has developed a special interest in electronics and in high-fidelity sound equipment. He has also written for the Review of Permanent Music, Review of Recorded Music, Down Beat and Saturday Review, and has been discography consultant to the New York Public Library. He is the author of The Highroad to Musical Enjoyment (1943) and editor of Schirmer's Guide to Books on Music and Musicians (1951).

Darrell lives with his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Holmes. The home has been called Balmoral after the name of a village in Nova Scotia, the home of his mother.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

I wonder how many folks remember Wadsworth's stationery store when it was across the street from the present Rondout Savings' Bank Building. In my time, back in the 1920's, he was an old man, who wore a sort of black skull cap but had a wonderful store of stationery items from all over the world, like imported colored pencils and water colors. I was glad to buy items there for my father, but Wadsworth waited on me so quickly that he didn't give me a chance to look around at his precious little boxes of little things. I see in Helen Mann's, Daily Freeman of Friday evening, Oct. 25, 1878, which is 75 years ago this month a Wadsworth advertisement when he was down at 185 Strand. His advertisement read in part: "Blank books and stationery of all kinds. Envelopes and paper, at bottom prices. Ink, pencils, holders, pens, mucilage, paste, etc. Mottoes and frames. Shelf paper, all colors. Convex glass. Winsor and Newton's tube colors. Scrap pictures always in stock. Scrap books, all sizes. Cards with text or plain.

Those were the days that the Thomas Cornell and James W. Baldwin steamers looked a lot like the old Clermont. In those days the fare to New York on them was 75 cents. Excursion tickets were $1.25. No doubt few could answer, "Where and what was China Hall in Kingston?" From this old newspaper I learn China Hall was on Union avenue (now Broadway) near the city hall. It was a store which sold china, table-glass, earthenware and other housekeeping articles. They had new styles of hanging vases and fancy flower pots, also French and German cooking-ware, as well as wax flower and pond lily shades.

An interesting item in this 1878 Freeman states: "Edison, the phenomenal inventor, is seriously ill at Menlo Park." It so happens that Edison was born in 1847 and in 1878 he was only 41, but he died in 1931 at the age of about 84.

Weather conditions were important in those days also, as related on this paper's front page: "Accounts being received of Wednesday's terrible gale, (Oct. 23, 1878) show that the destruction of property is immense. On the Chesapeake Bay from 30 to 40 vessels were driven ashore and several were wrecked. Two steamers with passengers were among them and many persons were drowned. The loss in Philadelphia, it is estimated, will reach close to $2,000,000 caused by damage done to nearly 300 dwellings and store, 31 churches and 23 schools. About 20 persons were killed and injured there. Our telegraphic news discloses the extent and character of the devastation made," the 75-year-old report said. So far I did not run across any damage from this gale in Kingston or vicinity.

There is mention of a steamer accident because of the high wind and unusually high tide on Wednesday night the steamer C. Vanderbilt on her down trip tried to land at Tivoli, her usual stop. She missed her pier and crashed with the ferryboat Air Line of Saugerties, lying at her dock, and the tug, Hattie, of Malden, which lay alongside of the ferry. Other boats had difficulty because of the high tide as nearly all the docks were submerged bringing the boats way above the dock landing.

It's a mystery how people who have one-track minds can usually manage to get on the wrong track.

Dental Treatment Plan Announced By Local VA Office

Only one-time dental treatment will be given to veterans with service-connected dental conditions or disabilities that are not severe enough to rate disability compensation, F. William Sheehan, officer in charge, Veterans Administration, 286 Fair street, announced today.

Sheehan said the limitation for these non-compensable cases was made under the basic 1933 law that authorizes the Administrator of Veteran Affairs to provide such medical, surgical or dental service as is "reasonably necessary" for diseases or injuries incurred or aggravated in line of duty in the active military or naval service.

The limitation by the Veterans Administration does not apply to veterans receiving disability compensation for service-connected dental conditions or disabilities. Nor does it apply to those veterans who require treatment for dental conditions, whether or not service-connected, which are medically found to be aggraviting another service-connected disability. All veterans whose treatment for non-compensable dental conditions or disabilities already has been completed will not be eligible for further treatment of those conditions or disabilities.

Exception for POWs

The one-time treatment for non-compensable cases will prevail unless the treatment is found to be unacceptable "within the limitations of good professional standards" or the veteran is found ineligible under one or more of the other dental benefits classifications. Sheehan said an exception is made for former prisoners of war who will receive as many dental treatments as are required to take care of disabilities found to have been caused by their imprisonment.

The one time treatment for non-compensable service-connected cases may be provided by VA dental clinics, or VA may authorize participating fee-basis dentists to provide it. Further information may be obtained by visiting the VA contact office, 286 Fair street.

Mt. Tremper

Mt. Tremper, Oct. 27—Residents of the Wittenberg road thought Washington Irving's Headless Horseman was in the saddle again when they were awakened about dawn Friday morning by the sound of hoofbeats and neighing on their front lawns. By the time John Callaghan investigated, he found only a few hoof prints. A short time later, however, Mrs. Grover Hedges cleared up the mystery by reporting that there were two handsome horses on her property. The horses were quartered in Fred Hornbach's barn until their owners were found. They are the property of Camp Wonderland and had been grazing on the camp's pastures and jumped the fence.

Mrs. Anna Szekretar and Miss Theresa Szekretar have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Otto Umhey. Mrs. Szekretar is Mrs. Umhey's mother and Miss Szekretar is her sister. They live in Glendale, L. I.

The final cement blocks for the walls of the Mt. Tremper-Mt. Pleasant Firehouse were laid by volunteers Sunday morning. The next work project of the firemen will be the installation of an aluminum roof on the building.

Benjamin Burgher, Ernest Gardner, Mrs. Francis Lane and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Umhey attended a "pig roast" at Casimir's Lodge, Big Indian, Saturday night. The roast was sponsored by the Big Indian-Oliverea Fire Department.

Leon Randall of Kingston, home on leave from the U. S. Navy, visited his aunt and uncle Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Every recently.

Many local residents attended the old-fashioned husking bee at Hudler's Barn Saturday night. Mrs. Mabel Hudler served homemade refreshments to her guests.

The Community Association will hold a Halloween masquerade party in the former schoolhouse Saturday night. Games, dancing and refreshments will be provided. Prizes will be awarded for the six best children's costumes. The party will start at 7:30 p. m.

The limitation by the Veterans Administration does not apply to veterans receiving disability compensation for service-connected dental conditions or disabilities. Nor does it apply to those veterans who require treatment for dental conditions, whether or not service-connected, which are medically found to be aggraviting another service-connected disability. All veterans whose treatment for non-compensable dental conditions or disabilities already has been completed will not be eligible for further treatment of those conditions or disabilities.

Exception for POWs

The one-time treatment for non-compensable cases will prevail unless the treatment is found to be unacceptable "within the limitations of good professional standards" or the veteran is found eligible under one or more of the other dental benefits classifications. Sheehan said an exception is made for former prisoners of war who will receive as many dental treatments as are required to take care of disabilities found to have been caused by their imprisonment.

The one time treatment for non-compensable service-connected cases may be provided by VA dental clinics, or VA may authorize participating fee-basis dentists to provide it. Further information may be obtained by visiting the VA contact office, 286 Fair street.

Mt. Tremper

Mt. Tremper, Oct. 27—Residents of the Wittenberg road thought Washington Irving's Headless Horseman was in the saddle again when they were awakened about dawn Friday morning by the sound of hoofbeats and neighing on their front lawns. By the time John Callaghan investigated, he found only a few hoof prints. A short time later, however, Mrs. Grover Hedges cleared up the mystery by reporting that there were two handsome horses on her property. The horses were quartered in Fred Hornbach's barn until their owners were found. They are the property of Camp Wonderland and had been grazing on the camp's pastures and jumped the fence.

Mrs. Anna Szekretar and Miss Theresa Szekretar have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Otto Umhey. Mrs. Szekretar is Mrs. Umhey's mother and Miss Szekretar is her sister. They live in Glendale, L. I.

The final cement blocks for the walls of the Mt. Tremper-Mt. Pleasant Firehouse were laid by volunteers Sunday morning. The next work project of the firemen will be the installation of an aluminum roof on the building.

Benjamin Burgher, Ernest Gardner, Mrs. Francis Lane and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Umhey attended a "pig roast" at Casimir's Lodge, Big Indian, Saturday night. The roast was sponsored by the Big Indian-Oliverea Fire Department.

Leon Randall of Kingston, home on leave from the U. S. Navy, visited his aunt and uncle Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Every recently.

Many local residents attended the old-fashioned husking bee at Hudler's Barn Saturday night. Mrs. Mabel Hudler served homemade refreshments to her guests.

The Community Association will hold a Halloween masquerade party in the former schoolhouse Saturday night. Games, dancing and refreshments will be provided. Prizes will be awarded for the six best children's costumes. The party will start at 7:30 p. m.

U. S. Steel Output Exceeds War Years

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—United States Steel Corp. is racing along at 100 per cent of its theoretical 1953 operating capacity and producing steel at an annual rate better than it did in any of the World Wor 2 years.

Board Chairman Benjamin F. Fairless expressed confidence yesterday that the full capacity operations would continue for the rest of this year, and keep at 95 per cent for the first quarter of 1954.

The world's biggest steel producer disclosed these highlights of its nine-month record after the meeting of the board of directors for the third quarter:

Its net income for the third quarter soared to a 37-year-high for such a period, which is normally pretty low. The earnings for the July-August-September period were $61,706,264 or $2.12 a share—greatest third quarter income since the 1916 high of $69,601,175, equal to $2.42 a share.

All-Time Record

An all-time record was hit in shipments of steel products during the first nine months this year with a total of 18,951,123 tons. The previous record nine-month total was 18,344,497 tons in 1951.

The third quarter income figure also was the biggest for any quarter since the three months ended June 30, 1950 which netted $69,861,496.

The third quarter's income compared with $55,640,806, equal to $1.89 a share, for the preceding three-months, and $30,405,472, or 92 cents a share for the strike-marred third quarter of 1952.

The corporation's net income for the first nine months of this year boomed to $166,723,028, or $5.66 a share, as compared with $96,158,606 or $2.96 a share for the like period of 1952.

The governor's talk was his second television appearance in behalf of Harold Riegelman, Republican candidate for mayor.

Epstein, a Wagner supporter and former state solicitor general, said later that Dewey's speech was "unseemly" in view of the fact the Fay parole pleader issue is now in the hands of the State Supreme Court.

Epstein said in a statement in New York: "Gov. Dewey knows that any statements he may make concerning this litigation are highly improper and give the appearance of tampering with the courts."

Robins Was . . .

"he advised me—that's good enough."

Asked in the private session whether he had "anything at all to say about who your partners should be," Robins replied: "No."

To a question as to whether he asked Levy why he had to have four partners, Robins said:

"He gave me a concession. Who am I to kick?"

Robins twisted and turned as the testimony was read.

Had Them at Fair Grounds

Then, receiving permission to make an explanation about the partners, Robins said:

"It was nothing new to me to have Milley and Roberts as partners—I had them at the fair grounds."

The reference was to the Mineola, N. Y., fairgrounds, where the witness said he had a concession. Trosk read into the record a tabulation of payments Robins said he had given to the partners from 1947 up to yesterday, as follows: Helen Cantor, $52,120; Maurice Cantor, $42,514; Jeannette Miller, $94,635; and Richard Roberts, $125,817.

The record indicated that profits were split on this basis: Helen Cantor, 12 per cent; Maurice Cantor, 8 per cent; Richard Roberts, 25 per cent; Jeannette Miller, 20 per cent, and Robins himself, 35 per cent.

Earlier Statement

Robins admitted in the open hearing that at one private questioning session he had said he selected the four partners and had arranged "through a conference" how much they were to receive.

Asked today how he determined the Cantors' percentage, Robins replied:

"I don't know."

Concerning the percentage to go to Roberts, he said:

"We just came to that agreement."

Asked if he remembered when he had "sat down and agreed to pay out 65 per cent of your profits," Robins said: "No."

"Didn't you tell me the first time that it came about in an entirely different way?" Trosk asked.

"I don't know," said Robins.

It was at this point that Trosk read the record of the private questioning, in which the witness said Levy "gave" him the partners and had told him what interest they were to have in the program business.

There have also been new rises in gasoline prices and the cost of public transportation.

No major labor union contracts are geared to this BLS index. In other months, the wages of CIO auto workers and railroad men may go up or down, depending on the fluctuations of the consumer price level.

High administration officials, led by President Eisenhower, have recently contended that prices, while still rising, are tending to flatten out on a high plateau. The present price level is about 13 per cent above the 1950 pre-Korean figure.

"HEY! YOU CAN'T MAKE CALLS ON PART OF A PHONE!"

The picture above is one way to indicate how inflation has cut into the job of providing you telephone service.

In 1940 it cost us an average of $36.50 to install a home phone—all the wires and equipment needed, from the street in. Today it costs almost half again as much to do the work!

It's a big job to supply service to all who want it. We are pushing ahead with our big expansion and improvement program as fast as possible, but inflated costs have made it the most expensive we have ever undertaken. Inflation has also shrunk the dollars we set aside to replace telephone plant that wears out.

Everyone feels inflation. Your cost of living is up 91% since 1940. Ours is up as much or more. Yet, during the same period, the average price of telephone service has increased only 16%.

As a result, our expenses have increased at a faster rate than our revenues. Operating efficiencies and technical improvements have narrowed this gap, but they fall far short of closing it.

We think these facts speak for themselves—especially since telephone service today is better than ever before.

How Telephone Company costs have gone up since 1940

Lead up	168%	Cable up	105%
Poles up	136%	Raw cotton up	233%
Copper up	139%	Buildings up	106%

yet phone service is up an average of only 16%

— more for some, less for others, of course, depending on the type of service and the use made of it.

Robins Was . . .

"he advised me—that's good enough."

Asked in the private session whether he had "anything at all to say about who your partners should be," Robins replied: "No."

To a question as to whether he asked Levy why he had to have four partners, Robins said:

"He gave me a concession. Who am I to kick?"

Robins twisted and turned as the testimony was read.

Had Them at Fair Grounds

Then, receiving permission to make an explanation about the partners, Robins said:

"It was nothing new to me to have Milley and Roberts as partners—I had them at the fair grounds."

The reference was to the Mineola, N. Y., fairgrounds, where the witness said he had a concession. Trosk read into the record a tabulation of payments Robins said he had given to the partners from 1947 up to yesterday, as follows: Helen Cantor, $52,120; Maurice Cantor, $42,514; Jeannette Miller, $94,635; and Richard Roberts, $125,817.

The record indicated that profits were split on this basis: Helen Cantor, 12 per cent; Maurice Cantor, 8 per cent; Richard Roberts, 25 per cent; Jeannette Miller, 20 per cent, and Robins himself, 35 per cent.

Earlier Statement

Robins admitted in the open hearing that at one private questioning session he had said he selected the four partners and had arranged "through a conference" how much they were to receive.

Asked today how he determined the Cantors' percentage, Robins replied:

"I don't know."

Concerning the percentage to go to Roberts, he said:

"We just came to that agreement."

Asked if he remembered when he had "sat down and agreed to pay out 65 per cent of your profits," Robins said: "No."

"Didn't you tell me the first time that it came about in an entirely different way?" Trosk asked.

"I don't know," said Robins.

It was at this point that Trosk read the record of the private questioning, in which the witness said Levy "gave" him the partners and had told him what interest they were to have in the program business.

There have also been new rises in gasoline prices and the cost of public transportation.

No major labor union contracts are geared to this BLS index. In other months, the wages of CIO auto workers and railroad men may go up or down, depending on the fluctuations of the consumer price level.

High administration officials, led by President Eisenhower, have recently contended that prices, while still rising, are tending to flatten out on a high plateau. The present price level is about 13 per cent above the 1950 pre-Korean figure.

"HEY! YOU CAN'T MAKE CALLS ON PART OF A PHONE!"

The picture above is one way to indicate how inflation has cut into the job of providing you telephone service.

In 1940 it cost us an average of $36.50 to install a home phone—all the wires and equipment needed, from the street in. Today it costs almost half again as much to do the work!

It's a big job to supply service to all who want it. We are pushing ahead with our big expansion and improvement program as fast as possible, but inflated costs have made it the most expensive we have ever undertaken. Inflation has also shrunk the dollars we set aside to replace telephone plant that wears out.

Everyone feels inflation. Your cost of living is up 91% since 1940. Ours is up as much or more. Yet, during the same period, the average price of telephone service has increased only 16%.

As a result, our expenses have increased at a faster rate than our revenues. Operating efficiencies and technical improvements have narrowed this gap, but they fall far short of closing it.

We think these facts speak for themselves—especially since telephone service today is better than ever before.

How Telephone Company costs have gone up since 1940

Lead up	168%	Cable up	105%
Poles up	136%	Raw cotton up	233%
Copper up	139%	Buildings up	106%

yet phone service is up an average of only 16%

— more for some, less for others, of course, depending on the type of service and the use made of it.

Four DUSO Teams Play This Weekend

Having survived the ordeal of a 7-6 squeaker over a souped-up Valley Stream eleven last Saturday, Kingston High's undefeated Maroons rest this weekend, while the other four DUSO powers commit mayhem on each other.

Newburgh Academy travels to Port Jervis Friday night for a battle of the have-nots. The next day Coach Sam Kalloch sends the Poughkeepsie Blues against Middletown in a daylight contest.

Port Jervis and Poughkeepsie are favored to win, although the Port-NFA battle could go either way. The Red and Black bounced back from its Poughkeepsie debacle to beat a good Arlington team, while the Goldbacks figure to improve with every outing.

Welcome Respite

The break in the schedule was probably welcomed by Coach Bill Burke and Russ Cunningham who saw their highly favored charges forced to come from behind against the island eleven that was "up" and ready for Kingston.

Curtis High and Valley Stream both failed to dent the Kingston line but managed to score, the Curtis squad racking up three TDs on long passes. The Sreamers caught the Kingston defense napping on one play and got off to a 6-0 lead at the half.

Lawrence High, the next opponent (Nov. 7) at municipal stadium is one of the Long Island's better squads and a rough, bruising battle is in prospect.

Coach Bill Burke admitted that Valley Stream was big and tough and hit as hard as any team faced by Kingston this season.

"And down at Valley Stream they told me that Lawrence played the roughest football on Long Island," the Maroon mentor quipped. At least we'll have the advantage of playing on our home field."

Massa Clicking

One of the spectacular developments of Kingston's five straight wins has been the sensational play of Gene Massa. The all-round ace has been tremendous to date and the biggest test of his career yet lies ahead—the Nov. 14 clash at Poughkeepsie.

Charlie Johnson, for some unexplained reason has not had a real good day since he ran riot at Port Jervis. But Maroon followers are hopeful that by Nov. 14 he will have recovered that magic touch. Kingston needs both Massa and Johnson to have an even chance against Sam Kalloch's all-star backfield.

Oakland, Calif.—Chuck Dressen signed a three-year contract to manage the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

While area high schools, notably Poughkeepsie and Port Jervis, justifiably complain about the mounting difficulty of booking an 8-game football schedule, Kingston High's 1954 slate is fairly well set, Coach G. Warren Kias reports.

Seven schools on this year's schedule return next year and the vacancy created by the sudden departure of Highland High will be filled before the next campaign rolls around.

All of which prompts one to ask a fair question:

How 'sudden' was Highland's exodus from the Kingston football family circle?

In all fairness to both schools, and to expose the popular theory that the 'incidents' of the recent night game were the direct cause of the rupture of relations, some important factors stand out. They are based on fact and sound speculation, although some persons will try to write fiction into them.

Not necessarily in the order of importance they are:

1. There was a feeling among many folks in Highland that their high school football team was playing "out of its class" against Kingston.

2. There is reason to believe that Highland High School officials had been seeking an "out" and the rumpus of Sept. 25 was a custom fitted, tailor made situation.

3. It is a matter of record that Highland High was the last team to confirm its 1953 schedule commitments with Kingston High. As a matter of fact the Highlanders didn't say yes we'll be there until some time in January of this year.

This was an unusual circumstance, particularly in view of the fact that the series had been carrying over for a number of years and it was generally accepted that Highland would continue to grace the Maroon schedule.

The obvious inference was that Highland was shopping around for a new opponent to replace Kingston. And even might have done so if the incumbent coach remained.

When Frank Hamblet was appointed new coach, the thinking might have been revised. One thing is a matter of history. The series did continue when it might have been cut off abruptly without Highland waiting for any provocation.

• Out of Its Class? Maybe:

The theory that Kingston High is out of Highland's class in football has some merit. Following the 1953 opener in which they absorbed a healthy pasting at the hands of Kingston, the southern Ulster gridders have scored three impressive victories against opponents in their own classification.

Football has suffered at Highland High because of frequent changes in the coaching staff, exposing the players to new theories, new formations and styles of play year after year. A one-year term seemed par for the course.

In the days when Frank LaFalce guided their football fortunes—and certainly in the Bill Burke era—Highland was a man sized opponent for the Maroon. Even Burke found LaFalce's aggregations hard to handle. As a matter of fact, Frank broke even with his old boss in five outings, two wins, two losses and a tie.

Who will ever forget the tremendous victory LaFalce scored over Kingston High and Burke the day Bill returned to Highland for the first time in the role of an opposing coach? It was an unforgettable experience for this observer who, by happenstance, was seated in the midst of several rabid Highland rooters. They seared our ears for four full quarters.

• Lean Days Since La Falce:

But Highland football fell upon lean days after LaFalce left to earn greater fame in upstate New York. None of his successors was able to match LaFalce's record on the gridiron. The declining fortunes was evident in the lopsided scores in Kingston's favor in recent seasons.

Some of these observations will not be the cause of universal rejoicing among Highland fans and officials. But if many of them are sincere and honest about the subject, they will admit a growing feeling toward dropping Kingston from the football schedule.

We do not condone the behavior of a few Kingston High School students on that regrettable night of Sept. 25. On the other hand it would be unfair to the facts to give perpetual comfort to the popular belief that the "incident" was the sole factor that led to the break-in relations. It merely hastened it.

ALL-AMERICA WAY . . . No. 4

Gophers Geil Back of Week

Paul Geil

New York, Oct. 28 (AP) — Because he has learned to play defense as well as offense, and because he was the key man in one of last Saturday's major upsets, Minnesota's Paul Giel was chosen today as the Associated Press back of the week.

It was a close contest between Giel and Zeke Bratkowski of Georgia, but the Minnesota player got the call from the voting sportswriters and sportscasters for his all-around performance, which included a Big Ten record for ball-handling.

Bratkowski's passing, according to observers, was "uncanny" and sports editor Furman Bisher of the Atlanta Constitution commented: "He means more to his team than any individual in the country." But "The Brat" was performing against North Carolina, a team with an ordinary record this season, while Giel was the big man in Minnesota's 22-0 decision over nationally-ranked Michigan.

A Great Day

Giel had "the greatest day of any athlete in the school's history," said Charles Johnson, veteran Minneapolis Star and Tribune football writer. Michigan coach Bennie Oosterbaan merely gasped "he was wonderful."

The Minnesota meteor handled the ball 53 times to set a conference record. He hit 11 passes before missing one and completed 13 of 18 for 169 yards during the game. He rushed for 112 yards, returned kicks for 83, punted and completely befuddled the Michigan defense with his faking.

In addition to those chores, Giel, strictly an offensive player up to this season, turned in a superb defensive performance which included two leaping interceptions of passes.

Pro Cage Experts See 10% Decline In George Mikan

Minneapolis, Oct. 28 (AP)—National Basketball Association coaches guessed hopefully today that George Mikan's advancing age would make ordinary mortals of the Minneapolis Lakers.

The pro masterminds said as much in the annual pre-season poll conducted by the Minneapolis Star. They figure that Mikan, now 29, will fade just enough to loosen the iron fist which the Lakers have clamped on the NBA title.

The Lakers and Boston were picked to win western and eastern division titles, but the coaches split evenly between Minneapolis and Fort Wayne for the Western playoff title.

None of the coaches, remembering Mikan-engineered Laker titles in five out of six years, were ready to push the 6-10 center into discard. But Fuzzy Levane of Milwaukee had a typical comment:

"Mikan is being replaced as 'Mr. Basketball' by Bob Cousy of Boston. But," he added, "Minneapolis is still the best club in basketball."

Most of the coaches felt Mikan will slip off to about 90 per cent of his last year's scoring output, when he averaged a healthy 20.6 points per game. Joe Lapchick of New York and Paul Birch of Fort Wayne can't foresee any kind of slump for big George.

Tom Fool Retires to Stud As One of Racing's Greats

New York, Oct. 28 (AP) — The great racing career of Tom Fool was behind him today, and now the question is whether he'll be voted the No. 1 horse of 1953 over the spectacular grey 3-year-old champion, Native Dancer.

John Hay (Jock) Whitney and his sister, Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson, of the Greentree Stable, announced unexpectedly yesterday that Tom Fool would skip the $75,000 Empire Gold Cup Saturday at Jamaica. The 4-year-old son of Menow-Gaga will be sent to the Greentree farm at Lexington, Ky., next month to enter the stud.

Tom Fool, unbeaten in 10 races this year, will go down in the record books as one of the great horses developed in this country. The sports world had anticipated a meeting between Massa Tom and the Dancer in the Sysonby mile at Belmont in September and the Pimlico Special at Baltimore last Saturday.

Never Met Dancer

But, Native Dancer came up with a bruised foot and was retired for the year by owner Alfred Vanderbilt.

Arguments raged on the merits of the two horses, but the question of who would have won never can be settled. Native Dancer has lost only once in his brilliant career, in the Kentucky Derby to Dark Star.

Tom Fool, under a snug hold by Jockey Ted Atkinson, made a show of the $50,000 Pimlico Special Saturday in what was to prove his swan song to racing. He won by eight lengths over Navy Page and Alerted, and broke the track record for a mile and three sixteenths. It was his eighth stakes victory of 1953, and perhaps his most convincing demonstration of speed and class.

Albany, Calif.—Wee Willie Shoemaker rode three winners for the fourth straight day at Golden Gate Fields and ran his year's world record to 410.

Cabs Blast 3188 But Drop Pair To Toohey Five

How would you like to crack two seasonal records—with a whopping 1180 and 3188—have five men roll "600" or better and still lose two games?

Those are the vicissitudes of bowling fortune that brought woe to the powerful Poughkeepsie Cabs in their crucial Sunday HVBL encounter with the Tooheys at Newburgh.

It was a battle of two titians who shared the league lead with Jones Dairy of Kingston. It figured to be a high scoring duel and it was.

But the Tooheys, powered by Nick Leoce's 713 blast (232-275-206) lost only the first game to the Cab's tremendous 1180. They copped the second 1046-1006 and the clincher, 1021-1002.

The sticks added up to 3188 for the Cabs, 3063 for the Tooheys. Bill Baker shot 605 and Wally Gerken 615 for the winners and for the Cabs the five "600" slams were George Baird 625, Dick Rhea 620, Fran Hauver 610, Jake Charter 648, Phil Versace 685.

The results left Tooheys out in front of the pack with 17 wins and 4 losses. Jones Dairy and the Cabbies are second with 16 and 5.

The scores:

Castellani Goes Against Laurent

Cleveland, Oct. 28 (AP) — Rocky Castellani, hoping to boost his chances for a shot at the middleweight title, tonight takes on Mickey Laurent, a would-be spoiler from France, in a televised 10-rounder.

Castellani, who now fights out of Cleveland, has won five times and lost once this year, bringing his lifetime record to 45 wins, five losses and five draws. He wants a crack at the title recently won by Bobo Olson in a battle with Randy Turpin.

Laurent, who comes from Montlucon in France, has battled to two draws and a loss since coming to the United States this year.

The main event will be televised starting at 10 p. m. (EST).

Lawrence High, the next opponent (Nov. 7) at municipal stadium is one of the Long Island's better squads and a rough, bruising battle is in prospect.

Coach Bill Burke admitted that Valley Stream was big and tough and hit as hard as any team faced by Kingston this season.

"And down at Valley Stream they told me that Lawrence played the roughest football on Long Island," the Maroon mentor quipped. At least we'll have the advantage of playing on our home field."

Massa Clicking

One of the spectacular developments of Kingston's five straight wins has been the sensational play of Gene Massa. The all-round ace has been tremendous to date and the biggest test of his career yet lies ahead—the Nov. 14 clash at Poughkeepsie.

Charlie Johnson, for some unexplained reason has not had a real good day since he ran riot at Port Jervis. But Maroon followers are hopeful that by Nov. 14 he will have recovered that magic touch. Kingston needs both Massa and Johnson to have an even chance against Sam Kalloch's all-star backfield.

Oakland, Calif.—Chuck Dressen signed a three-year contract to manage the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

While area high schools, notably Poughkeepsie and Port Jervis, justifiably complain about the mounting difficulty of booking an 8-game football schedule, Kingston High's 1954 slate is fairly well set, Coach G. Warren Kias reports.

Seven schools on this year's schedule return next year and the vacancy created by the sudden departure of Highland High will be filled before the next campaign rolls around.

All of which prompts one to ask a fair question:

How 'sudden' was Highland's exodus from the Kingston football family circle?

In all fairness to both schools, and to expose the popular theory that the 'incidents' of the recent night game were the direct cause of the rupture of relations, some important factors stand out. They are based on fact and sound speculation, although some persons will try to write fiction into them.

Not necessarily in the order of importance they are:

1. There was a feeling among many folks in Highland that their high school football team was playing "out of its class" against Kingston.

2. There is reason to believe that Highland High School officials had been seeking an "out" and the rumpus of Sept. 25 was a custom fitted, tailor made situation.

3. It is a matter of record that Highland High was the last team to confirm its 1953 schedule commitments with Kingston High. As a matter of fact the Highlanders didn't say yes we'll be there until some time in January of this year.

This was an unusual circumstance, particularly in view of the fact that the series had been carrying over for a number of years and it was generally accepted that Highland would continue to grace the Maroon schedule.

The obvious inference was that Highland was shopping around for a new opponent to replace Kingston. And even might have done so if the incumbent coach remained.

When Frank Hamblet was appointed new coach, the thinking might have been revised. One thing is a matter of history. The series did continue when it might have been cut off abruptly without Highland waiting for any provocation.

• Out of Its Class? Maybe:

The theory that Kingston High is out of Highland's class in football has some merit. Following the 1953 opener in which they absorbed a healthy pasting at the hands of Kingston, the southern Ulster gridders have scored three impressive victories against opponents in their own classification.

Football has suffered at Highland High because of frequent changes in the coaching staff, exposing the players to new theories, new formations and styles of play year after year. A one-year term seemed par for the course.

In the days when Frank LaFalce guided their football fortunes—and certainly in the Bill Burke era—Highland was a man sized opponent for the Maroon. Even Burke found LaFalce's aggregations hard to handle. As a matter of fact, Frank broke even with his old boss in five outings, two wins, two losses and a tie.

Who will ever forget the tremendous victory LaFalce scored over Kingston High and Burke the day Bill returned to Highland for the first time in the role of an opposing coach? It was an unforgettable experience for this observer who, by happenstance, was seated in the midst of several rabid Highland rooters. They seared our ears for four full quarters.

• Lean Days Since La Falce:

But Highland football fell upon lean days after LaFalce left to earn greater fame in upstate New York. None of his successors was able to match LaFalce's record on the gridiron. The declining fortunes was evident in the lopsided scores in Kingston's favor in recent seasons.

Some of these observations will not be the cause of universal rejoicing among Highland fans and officials. But if many of them are sincere and honest about the subject, they will admit a growing feeling toward dropping Kingston from the football schedule.

We do not condone the behavior of a few Kingston High School students on that regrettable night of Sept. 25. On the other hand it would be unfair to the facts to give perpetual comfort to the popular belief that the "incident" was the sole factor that led to the break-in relations. It merely hastened it.

Gophers Geil Back of Week

Paul Geil

New York, Oct. 28 (AP) — Because he has learned to play defense as well as offense, and because he was the key man in one of last Saturday's major upsets, Minnesota's Paul Giel was chosen today as the Associated Press back of the week.

It was a close contest between Giel and Zeke Bratkowski of Georgia, but the Minnesota player got the call from the voting sportswriters and sportscasters for his all-around performance, which included a Big Ten record for ball-handling.

Bratkowski's passing, according to observers, was "uncanny" and sports editor Furman Bisher of the Atlanta Constitution commented: "He means more to his team than any individual in the country." But "The Brat" was performing against North Carolina, a team with an ordinary record this season, while Giel was the big man in Minnesota's 22-0 decision over nationally-ranked Michigan.

A Great Day

Giel had "the greatest day of any athlete in the school's history," said Charles Johnson, veteran Minneapolis Star and Tribune football writer. Michigan coach Bennie Oosterbaan merely gasped "he was wonderful."

The Minnesota meteor handled the ball 53 times to set a conference record. He hit 11 passes before missing one and completed 13 of 18 for 169 yards during the game. He rushed for 112 yards, returned kicks for 83, punted and completely befuddled the Michigan defense with his faking.

In addition to those chores, Giel, strictly an offensive player up to this season, turned in a superb defensive performance which included two leaping interceptions of passes.

Pro Cage Experts See 10% Decline In George Mikan

Minneapolis, Oct. 28 (AP)—National Basketball Association coaches guessed hopefully today that George Mikan's advancing age would make ordinary mortals of the Minneapolis Lakers.

The pro masterminds said as much in the annual pre-season poll conducted by the Minneapolis Star. They figure that Mikan, now 29, will fade just enough to loosen the iron fist which the Lakers have clamped on the NBA title.

The Lakers and Boston were picked to win western and eastern division titles, but the coaches split evenly between Minneapolis and Fort Wayne for the Western playoff title.

None of the coaches, remembering Mikan-engineered Laker titles in five out of six years, were ready to push the 6-10 center into discard. But Fuzzy Levane of Milwaukee had a typical comment:

"Mikan is being replaced as 'Mr. Basketball' by Bob Cousy of Boston. But," he added, "Minneapolis is still the best club in basketball."

Most of the coaches felt Mikan will slip off to about 90 per cent of his last year's scoring output, when he averaged a healthy 20.6 points per game. Joe Lapchick of New York and Paul Birch of Fort Wayne can't foresee any kind of slump for big George.

Cabs Blast 3188 But Drop Pair To Toohey Five

How would you like to crack two seasonal records—with a whopping 1180 and 3188—have five men roll "600" or better and still lose two games?

Those are the vicissitudes of bowling fortune that brought woe to the powerful Poughkeepsie Cabs in their crucial Sunday HVBL encounter with the Tooheys at Newburgh.

It was a battle of two titians who shared the league lead with Jones Dairy of Kingston. It figured to be a high scoring duel and it was.

But the Tooheys, powered by Nick Leoce's 713 blast (232-275-206) lost only the first game to the Cab's tremendous 1180. They copped the second 1046-1006 and the clincher, 1021-1002.

The sticks added up to 3188 for the Cabs, 3063 for the Tooheys. Bill Baker shot 605 and Wally Gerken 615 for the winners and for the Cabs the five "600" slams were George Baird 625, Dick Rhea 620, Fran Hauver 610, Jake Charter 648, Phil Versace 685.

The results left Tooheys out in front of the pack with 17 wins and 4 losses. Jones Dairy and the Cabbies are second with 16 and 5.

The scores:

Castellani Goes Against Laurent

Cleveland, Oct. 28 (AP) — Rocky Castellani, hoping to boost his chances for a shot at the middleweight title, tonight takes on Mickey Laurent, a would-be spoiler from France, in a televised 10-rounder.

Castellani, who now fights out of Cleveland, has won five times and lost once this year, bringing his lifetime record to 45 wins, five losses and five draws. He wants a crack at the title recently won by Bobo Olson in a battle with Randy Turpin.

Laurent, who comes from Montlucon in France, has battled to two draws and a loss since coming to the United States this year.

The main event will be televised starting at 10 p. m. (EST).

How Ingenious Is This Leahy

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 28 (AP)—Coach Frank Leahy, by means of a closed television circuit and a direct telephone line, supervised practice of his Notre Dame Football squad yesterday from his hospital bed.

A special micro-wave closed TV circuit was arranged by WSBT-TV, South Bend station, enabling Leahy to watch the Irish practice at Cartier Field, more than a mile away from his room in St. Joseph's Hospital. Leahy was stricken with a stomach ailment at halftime of Notre Dame's 27-14 victory over Georgia Tech Saturday. He is expected to be released tomorrow.

Tom Fool Retires to Stud As One of Racing's Greats

New York, Oct. 28 (AP) — The great racing career of Tom Fool was behind him today, and now the question is whether he'll be voted the No. 1 horse of 1953 over the spectacular grey 3-year-old champion, Native Dancer.

John Hay (Jock) Whitney and his sister, Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson, of the Greentree Stable, announced unexpectedly yesterday that Tom Fool would skip the $75,000 Empire Gold Cup Saturday at Jamaica. The 4-year-old son of Menow-Gaga will be sent to the Greentree farm at Lexington, Ky., next month to enter the stud.

Tom Fool, unbeaten in 10 races this year, will go down in the record books as one of the great horses developed in this country. The sports world had anticipated a meeting between Massa Tom and the Dancer in the Sysonby mile at Belmont in September and the Pimlico Special at Baltimore last Saturday.

Never Met Dancer

But, Native Dancer came up with a bruised foot and was retired for the year by owner Alfred Vanderbilt.

Arguments raged on the merits of the two horses, but the question of who would have won never can be settled. Native Dancer has lost only once in his brilliant career, in the Kentucky Derby to Dark Star.

Tom Fool, under a snug hold by Jockey Ted Atkinson, made a show of the $50,000 Pimlico Special Saturday in what was to prove his swan song to racing. He won by eight lengths over Navy Page and Alerted, and broke the track record for a mile and three sixteenths. It was his eighth stakes victory of 1953, and perhaps his most convincing demonstration of speed and class.

Albany, Calif.—Wee Willie Shoemaker rode three winners for the fourth straight day at Golden Gate Fields and ran his year's world record to 410.

In 1952 Sweden had 54,000 American visitors compared with an annual 17,000 before World War 2.

Magadini is a varsity performer in the three roughest and toughest collegiate sports—football, lacrosse and hockey. Rapp's Express, Angel Jrs. Cop Key Wins in Autumn 'B' League

Bob Kozlowski High With 22 Points

Rapp's Express turned back the challenge of Waterous Lumber, 70-53, in last night's "B" Autumn League basketball feature at the YMCA.

The victory was the fourth in five starts for the Expressmen and kept them a half game ahead of the Junior Angels who romped over Village Rest, 69-50.

A brisk second half, including a 21-point stretch period enabled Rapp's to outdistance the Lumberjacks, after a brisk first half in which the lead changed hands six times. At the break the winners led 35-26.

Kozlowski Hits 22

Bob Kozlowski rimmed 22 points for Rapp's to challenge Herbie Waterous' average leadership in the "B" loop. Waterous, who led the pack with a 21.8 average up to last night, bucketed 19 points, a total matched by his brother, Billy.

Phil McCluskey and Don Baum hit in double figures with 12 and 10 respectively for the Expressmen.

Angels Lead Early

The Angels grabbed a 13-8 lead over Village Rest in the first quarter and forged steadily ahead the remainder of the way. They led 30-23 at the break.

Village Rest was weakened when they lost their center, Jack Beaver, on fouls in the second period.

BEAR ATTACKS....

By WARREN PAGE
(Shooting Editor)

To the non-shooter, guns are not only a shade dangerous but also more than a shade mysterious. And even the fraternity who enjoy burning powder now and again perpetuate bits of mysterious nonsense. They probably do no great harm, but there's no point in keeping them alive.

Take for example the whopper about the steel cleaning rod. Scratch the twice-a-year shooter and he'll tell you that a solid steel cleaning rod is a mighty poor tool. He'll say it will wear those important squirly-gigs, the lands, out of a rifle or handgun barrel. In practical terms that's sheer poppycock.

Vulnerable Itself

One of the major faults of the cleaning rod of soft metal is that it will itself be scratched on the land edges, then may later pick up dust and harsh grit to be carried into the bore and give your barrel the dubious benefits of an emery treatment.

The harder steel rod stays smooth, picks up no abrasives. Being stiffer, it snakes and flexes less when you're ramming an oversize patch through the bore, hence is less likely to scar either the throat of the barrel or the extreme muzzle ends of the lands.

Then there's the common fetish that a barrel must be cleaned more or less instantly after every use, lest it corrode and acquire a bore as rough as a barnacled barge bottom. In earlier years prompt cleaning and oiling was a vital necessity. Black powders deposited a gummy soot which soon fouled the bore beyond the point of reasonable accuracy. The corrosive primers in general use during the first quarter of this century forced prompt attention because in firing they deposited potassium salts along the bore. These in turn picked up moisture from the air, causing rapid rusting and pitting. But the residues from today's priming compounds and powders are non-hygroscopic, do not abosorb atmospheric humidity. In fact, their chemistry has certain anti-corrosion effects more or less built in.

Not Bad Idea

This doesn't mean that a center-fire rifle shouldn't be cleaned with nitro-solvents fairly soon after you shoot it. And it doesn't mean that you can use a gun of any sort in wet weather, without giving it anti-rust attention inside as well as out.

Yet a shotgun used and stored under reasonably dry conditions can go without a bore-scrubbing for months and many rounds of shooting. Often mine are not bore-cleaned until I strip them down for a careful cleaning and re-lubrication of the action. A .32 rimfire, under the right dry-air conditions, can be treated the same way.

Gun cleaning is still a necessity—and to most shooters a pleasure.

Jupiter Wins Handicap

Newmarket, England, Oct. 28 (AP)—Sir Gordon Richards rode Jupiter, a three-year-old chestnut colt, to victory in the 111th running of the one mile and a furlong Cambridgeshire Handicap stakes at Newmarket track today. King of the Tudors, ridden by Ken Gethin, was second, and Fair Colleen, ridden by J. Sime, was third in the field of 30 horses. The Cambridgeshire is the last big stakes of the British flat racing season. An Irish hospital sweepstakes is based on the results. Jupiter started at odds of 100-6. King of the Tudors was 20-1 and Fair Colleen, 22-1.

New York Gets Floods

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—Heavy rain today ended a long dry spell and poured water into some apartments and subways. The storm revealed that a number of drains had become clogged during dry weather. Police received a flurry of pre-dawn telephone calls complaining that water had backed up from drain spouts onto apartment roofs and then through ceilings. Clogged street drains inundated some streets and halted automobile traffic for as long as half an hour. One subway train was delayed 10 minutes near the 60th street East river tube until an excess of water on the line was pumped out.

Lucky Thirteen

Walhalia, S. C. (AP)—Mrs. Rod Turnbull, born on a Dec. 13, has no fear of 13's. She was born in the 13th year of her parents' marriage and was the 13th grandchild in her generation. There are thirteen letters in her maiden name and her 13th birthday came on a Friday the 13th. She never plans things for her lucky day, the 13th, so avoided being married on that date. But she sailed from the United States to join her husband in Japan's occupation forces on a 13th, and she and her husband sailed back home on a 13th.

Out-of-Town 'Walk'

Minneapolis (AP) — Ten-year-old Morton Iver of Fargo, N. D., who "went for a walk," arrived here aboard a train—with no ticket, no money, no luggage. Morton said no one asked any questions after he wandered onto the train. Police informed Morton's frantic parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Iver, who drove here to get him. "Trains sure are interesting," the lad told police as he left after the 240-mile rail trip.

Rapp's Express, Angel Jrs. Cop Key Wins in Autumn 'B' League

Bob Kozlowski High With 22 Points

Rapp's Express turned back the challenge of Waterous Lumber, 70-53, in last night's "B" Autumn League basketball feature at the YMCA.

The victory was the fourth in five starts for the Expressmen and kept them a half game ahead of the Junior Angels who romped over Village Rest, 69-50.

A brisk second half, including a 21-point stretch period enabled Rapp's to outdistance the Lumberjacks, after a brisk first half in which the lead changed hands six times. At the break the winners led 35-26.

Kozlowski Hits 22

Bob Kozlowski rimmed 22 points for Rapp's to challenge Herbie Waterous' average leadership in the "B" loop. Waterous, who led the pack with a 21.8 average up to last night, bucketed 19 points, a total matched by his brother, Billy.

Phil McCluskey and Don Baum hit in double figures with 12 and 10 respectively for the Expressmen.

Angels Lead Early

The Angels grabbed a 13-8 lead over Village Rest in the first quarter and forged steadily ahead the remainder of the way. They led 30-23 at the break.

Village Rest was weakened when they lost their center, Jack Beaver, on fouls in the second period.

OUT OF DOORS with Field & Stream

By WARREN PAGE
(Shooting Editor)

To the non-shooter, guns are not only a shade dangerous but also more than a shade mysterious. And even the fraternity who enjoy burning powder now and again perpetuate bits of mysterious nonsense. They probably do no great harm, but there's no point in keeping them alive.

Take for example the whopper about the steel cleaning rod. Scratch the twice-a-year shooter and he'll tell you that a solid steel cleaning rod is a mighty poor tool. He'll say it will wear those important squirly-gigs, the lands, out of a rifle or handgun barrel. In practical terms that's sheer poppycock.

Vulnerable Itself

One of the major faults of the cleaning rod of soft metal is that it will itself be scratched on the land edges, then may later pick up dust and harsh grit to be carried into the bore and give your barrel the dubious benefits of an emery treatment.

The harder steel rod stays smooth, picks up no abrasives. Being stiffer, it snakes and flexes less when you're ramming an oversize patch through the bore, hence is less likely to scar either the throat of the barrel or the extreme muzzle ends of the lands.

Then there's the common fetish that a barrel must be cleaned more or less instantly after every use, lest it corrode and acquire a bore as rough as a barnacled barge bottom. In earlier years prompt cleaning and oiling was a vital necessity. Black powders deposited a gummy soot which soon fouled the bore beyond the point of reasonable accuracy. The corrosive primers in general use during the first quarter of this century forced prompt attention because in firing they deposited potassium salts along the bore. These in turn picked up moisture from the air, causing rapid rusting and pitting. But the residues from today's priming compounds and powders are non-hygroscopic, do not abosorb atmospheric humidity. In fact, their chemistry has certain anti-corrosion effects more or less built in.

Not Bad Idea

This doesn't mean that a center-fire rifle shouldn't be cleaned with nitro-solvents fairly soon after you shoot it. And it doesn't mean that you can use a gun of any sort in wet weather, without giving it anti-rust attention inside as well as out.

Yet a shotgun used and stored under reasonably dry conditions can go without a bore-scrubbing for months and many rounds of shooting. Often mine are not bore-cleaned until I strip them down for a careful cleaning and re-lubrication of the action. A .32 rimfire, under the right dry-air conditions, can be treated the same way.

Gun cleaning is still a necessity—and to most shooters a pleasure.

Jupiter Wins Handicap

Newmarket, England, Oct. 28 (AP)—Sir Gordon Richards rode Jupiter, a three-year-old chestnut colt, to victory in the 111th running of the one mile and a furlong Cambridgeshire Handicap stakes at Newmarket track today. King of the Tudors, ridden by Ken Gethin, was second, and Fair Colleen, ridden by J. Sime, was third in the field of 30 horses. The Cambridgeshire is the last big stakes of the British flat racing season. An Irish hospital sweepstakes is based on the results. Jupiter started at odds of 100-6. King of the Tudors was 20-1 and Fair Colleen, 22-1.

Standard's New Elevator

Standard Slates Reopening Days

The Standard Furniture Company, 267 Fair street, will mark the completion of its interior remodeling project with a "Grand Reopening Sale" Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

The sale was announced with nine full pages of advertising in today's Freeman, the largest amount of advertising used in one day in the 14-year history of the Kingston store.

An extensive remodeling project has given the store an estimated 3,000 square feet of additional display area, by removing the old style, large staircase leading from basement to second floor. A 16-passenger Otis elevator was installed to give access to all display floors, including the mezzanine.

Balcony Added

Other alterations included repartitioning to provide office space two and a half times as large as formerly. Each floor was redecorated, and a small balcony was added in the front of the store for display of unfinished furniture.

No changes were made to the exterior of the building.

A more attractive and less cluttered appearance was achieved by grouping furniture on floors according to type. Kitchen appliances and juvenile furniture are shown on the basement level, living room furniture, occasional chairs and television on the main floor, dual purpose furniture for daytime-nighttime use on the mezzanine, and bedroom, dining room, bedding mattresses, cedar chests and similar items on the second floor.

Three Sale Days

During each of the three sale days, the store will be open from 9 a. m. until 9 p. m., it was announced by Jay Melton, store manager. "Special prices and unusual values will be offered," Melton said.

The Standard Furniture Company dates its beginning to the establishment of a store in Albany 52 years ago. After initial success in that city, the firm began to expand into other cities, with Kingston being the first branch to open.

William Fienberg is president of the firm, and Chester Fienberg is its general manager. The firm attributes much of its success to its policy of offering "name brand" furniture and appliances with no charge for credit.

Levine Car Stolen

A police check last night on a report that a car had gone off the road on Hooker street revealed that the sedan, owned by Morris Levine, of 129 Highland avenue, had been stolen. A telephone call from the Berardi residence at 142 Hooker street, said the car had run off the road near that address. Officers Sheldon O'Rourke and Crawford Millham investigated. The car, damaged on its front, two front tires and left rear tire, was towed from the scene.

Held as Speeder

Frank Barberio, 60, of Shandaken, was arrested by Officer Ernest Bartroff in the Washington avenue school zone at noon yesterday on a charge of speeding. He was released under $10 bail for appearance Nov. 7 before City Judge Raymond J. Mino.

55 Cars Are Derailed

Maybrook, Oct. 28 (AP) — Fifty-five cars of two freight trains were spilled over the landscape today in an early morning derailment that blocked a main freight artery to New England. Two crewmen were hurt. Authorities said fireman Francis Kimler, 37, of Hampden, Conn., suffered a fractured pelvis and spine. Head brakeman Frank Wozniak was injured slightly.

Standard's New Elevator

Standard Slates Reopening Days

The Standard Furniture Company, 267 Fair street, will mark the completion of its interior remodeling project with a "Grand Reopening Sale" Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

The sale was announced with nine full pages of advertising in today's Freeman, the largest amount of advertising used in one day in the 14-year history of the Kingston store.

An extensive remodeling project has given the store an estimated 3,000 square feet of additional display area, by removing the old style, large staircase leading from basement to second floor. A 16-passenger Otis elevator was installed to give access to all display floors, including the mezzanine.

Balcony Added

Other alterations included repartitioning to provide office space two and a half times as large as formerly. Each floor was redecorated, and a small balcony was added in the front of the store for display of unfinished furniture.

No changes were made to the exterior of the building.

A more attractive and less cluttered appearance was achieved by grouping furniture on floors according to type. Kitchen appliances and juvenile furniture are shown on the basement level, living room furniture, occasional chairs and television on the main floor, dual purpose furniture for daytime-nightime use on the mezzanine, and bedroom, dining room, bedding mattresses, cedar chests and similar items on the second floor.

Three Sale Days

During each of the three sale days, the store will be open from 9 a. m. until 9 p. m., it was announced by Jay Melton, store manager. "Special prices and unusual values will be offered," Melton said.

The Standard Furniture Company dates its beginning to the establishment of a store in Albany 52 years ago. After initial success in that city, the firm began to expand into other cities, with Kingston being the first branch to open.

William Fienberg is president of the firm, and Chester Fienberg is its general manager. The firm attributes much of its success to its policy of offering "name brand" furniture and appliances with no charge for credit.

Levine Car Stolen

A police check last night on a report that a car had gone off the road on Hooker street revealed that the sedan, owned by Morris Levine, of 129 Highland avenue, had been stolen. A telephone call from the Berardi residence at 142 Hooker street, said the car had run off the road near that address. Officers Sheldon O'Rourke and Crawford Millham investigated. The car, damaged on its front, two front tires and left rear tire, was towed from the scene.

Held as Speeder

Frank Barberio, 60, of Shandaken, was arrested by Officer Ernest Bartroff in the Washington avenue school zone at noon yesterday on a charge of speeding. He was released under $10 bail for appearance Nov. 7 before City Judge Raymond J. Mino.

Republican Ladies Hear About GOP Campaign

At a meeting of the Ulster County Women's Republican Club, Tuesday night in the Governor Clinton Hotel, 100 members and friends heard candidates speak about the coming election, November 3, particularly Frederick H. Stang, seeking the post of mayor of the City of Kingston. From left are City Judge Raymond J. Mino, running for re-election; Mrs. Leslie Hotaling, president of the club; Attorney Stang, Mrs. Benjamin Chipman, program chairman; Attorney N. Le Van Haver, chairman of the GOP city committee and Alderman-at-Large Joseph Kelly up for re-election. At a business meeting prior to introducing the city candidates, the club announced a Halloween party Saturday at 7 p. m. for the patients of the TB Hospital. Miss Alice Scardefield and Mrs. Frank O'Reilly are co-chairmen of the event. (Freeman photo)

Polluted Reservoir

"The city property at Reservoir No. 2 should be held primarily as a site for a modern gravity water treatment plant, which will be needed before many years to replace the 50-year-old pressure filter plant now in service, and secondarily as an emergency supply of water in case of an extended interruption of service from the elements, or sabotage."

Mayor Cannot Act

Stang said he wanted to make "one fact crystal clear, so there can be no misunderstanding. The mayor of Kingston cannot sell the reservoir to anyone. The Water Board is a separate municipal entity. It consists of five outstanding men of this community, who are in the order of years of service: Thomas Davitt, John Schwenck, Ben Schechter, Howard Pangburn and Paul Schatzel, with Ed Cloonan, the very efficient superintendent in charge of operations. . . . The mayor can only recommend."

Stang pointed out that his suggestion for the disposal of Reservoir No. 1 followed an inspection trip he took soon after his nomination, feeling it was his "duty to learn more about, among other things, the operation of the Water Department." Upon reaching Reservoir No. 1 he made certain inquiries which resulted, upon further study, in his suggestion to dispose of the reservoir, he said.

Blames Low Pressure

Many citizens not familiar with the situation, Stang said, questioned the advisability of selling an abandoned reservoir, remembering occasions during the hot season when they were not permitted to use water for sprinkling.

He explained that this was "not due in any way to an inadequate supply, but rather to the facilities we now have to bring the water to the city." Stang pointed out that a 70-year-old 18-inch pipe line bringing water from the filter plant at Zena to the city had deteriorated to such an extent that it was "impossible to force water through it under sufficient pressure to give to the consumers all the water they need." He said plans were complete for replacement of approximately 5,000 feet of this pipe with larger and stronger pipe which would furnish an adequate supply of water during the hot summer months.

Standpipe Site Acquired

He pointed out also that property had been acquired on upper Pearl street for the erection of a standpipe with a capacity of half a million gallons and a two-fold purpose: Correction of low pressure in the uptown area and supply of water available immediately if necessary for fire protection.

Answering a statement made by his Democratic opponent in a speech Saturday evening that a lawyer had no place in the administration of municipal affairs, Stang pointed out that the late Fiorello LaGuardia, an attorney, had been mayor of New York and that all candidates in the present race for mayor of New York are lawyers. Others he named were Mayor Thatcher of Albany, who held that post for many years; Raymond McGovern, comptroller of the State of New York, Roscoe Irwin and William D. Brinnier, both Democrats, who served as mayors of Kingston.

RVA, Auxiliary Hold Quarterly Meeting

The quarterly joint meeting of the Department of New York, Regular Veterans Association and Auxiliary was held Oct. 24 at Joyce-Schirick VFW Post rooms in Kingston.

Department Commander Erwin P. Bacon, Niagara Falls, presided, assisted by Jessica L. Newman, Albany, president Department of New York Auxiliary. The Ulster County Memorial Post RVA was host to Department officials present as well as post commanders from many parts of the state. Many important matters affecting veterans were discussed. A resolution was adopted thanking the local VFW Post for their hospitality and use of post rooms for Department meeting. Referred to Department Senior Veterans Committee. George Nichols was the investigator into the organization of new posts in Sullivan county, also one in northern Ulster-Greene county area, and to complete organization of a new post in Albany.

A report was submitted of the proceedings of the National RVA convention at Denver, Colo., Sept. 26 at which Herbert Fischer of Aurora, Colo., was elected national commander. Following his election the national commander appointed Erwin P. Bacon, Niagara Falls, as national inspector and George W. Nichols of Kingston as director on the Board for National RVA Legislation. Louis Vagnozzi of Niagara Falls was elected Zone 2 Councilman on National Council of Administration.

Two Hunters Fined For Breaking Rule

Now you Know!
The answers to everyday insurance problems
By HERMAN J. EATON

QUESTION: I've heard that in order to get a decent premium rate on burglary or theft insurance, the insured person must take all kinds of expensive precautions. If that is the case, it seems to me that it would be just as costly over a period of time as an actual loss by theft.

ANSWER: That is definitely not the case. The Insurance Companies expect only that insured people will take about the same precautions as if they had no insurance.

• If you'll address your own insurance questions to this office we'll try to give you the correct answers and there will be NO CHARGE OR OBLIGATION OF ANY KIND.

Republican Ladies Hear About GOP Campaign

At a meeting of the Ulster County Women's Republican Club, Tuesday night in the Governor Clinton Hotel, 100 members and friends heard candidates speak about the coming election, November 3, particularly Frederick H. Stang, seeking the post of mayor of the City of Kingston. From left are City Judge Raymond J. Mino, running for re-election; Mrs. Leslie Hotaling, president of the club; Attorney Stang, Mrs. Benjamin Chipman, program chairman; Attorney N. Le Van Haver, chairman of the GOP city committee and Alderman-at-Large Joseph Kelly up for re-election. At a business meeting prior to introducing the city candidates, the club announced a Halloween party Saturday at 7 p. m. for the patients of the TB Hospital. Miss Alice Scardefield and Mrs. Frank O'Reilly are co-chairmen of the event. (Freeman photo)

Polluted Reservoir

"The city property at Reservoir No. 2 should be held primarily as a site for a modern gravity water treatment plant, which will be needed before many years to replace the 50-year-old pressure filter plant now in service, and secondarily as an emergency supply of water in case of an extended interruption of service from the elements, or sabotage."

Mayor Cannot Act

Stang said he wanted to make "one fact crystal clear, so there can be no misunderstanding. The mayor of Kingston cannot sell the reservoir to anyone. The Water Board is a separate municipal entity. It consists of five outstanding men of this community, who are in the order of years of service: Thomas Davitt, John Schwenck, Ben Schechter, Howard Pangburn and Paul Schatzel, with Ed Cloonan, the very efficient superintendent in charge of operations. . . . The mayor can only recommend."

Stang pointed out that his suggestion for the disposal of Reservoir No. 1 followed an inspection trip he took soon after his nomination, feeling it was his "duty to learn more about, among other things, the operation of the Water Department." Upon reaching Reservoir No. 1 he made certain inquiries which resulted, upon further study, in his suggestion to dispose of the reservoir, he said.

Blames Low Pressure

Many citizens not familiar with the situation, Stang said, questioned the advisability of selling an abandoned reservoir, remembering occasions during the hot season when they were not permitted to use water for sprinkling.

He explained that this was "not due in any way to an inadequate supply, but rather to the facilities we now have to bring the water to the city." Stang pointed out that a 70-year-old 18-inch pipe line bringing water from the filter plant at Zena to the city had deteriorated to such an extent that it was "impossible to force water through it under sufficient pressure to give to the consumers all the water they need." He said plans were complete for replacement of approximately 5,000 feet of this pipe with larger and stronger pipe which would furnish an adequate supply of water during the hot summer months.

Standpipe Site Acquired

He pointed out also that property had been acquired on upper Pearl street for the erection of a standpipe with a capacity of half a million gallons and a two-fold purpose: Correction of low pressure in the uptown area and supply of water available immediately if necessary for fire protection.

Answering a statement made by his Democratic opponent in a speech Saturday evening that a lawyer had no place in the administration of municipal affairs, Stang pointed out that the late Fiorello LaGuardia, an attorney, had been mayor of New York and that all candidates in the present race for mayor of New York are lawyers. Others he named were Mayor Thatcher of Albany, who held that post for many years; Raymond McGovern, comptroller of the State of New York, Roscoe Irwin and William D. Brinnier, both Democrats, who served as mayors of Kingston.

RVA, Auxiliary Hold Quarterly Meeting

Department Commander Erwin P. Bacon, Niagara Falls, presided, assisted by Jessica L. Newman, Albany, president Department of New York Auxiliary. The Ulster County Memorial Post RVA was host to Department officials present as well as post commanders from many parts of the state. Many important matters affecting veterans were discussed. A resolution was adopted thanking the local VFW Post for their hospitality and use of post rooms for Department meeting. Referred to Department Senior Veterans Committee. George Nichols was the investigator into the organization of new posts in Sullivan county, also one in northern Ulster-Greene county area, and to complete organization of a new post in Albany.

A report was submitted of the proceedings of the National RVA convention at Denver, Colo., Sept. 26 at which Herbert Fischer of Aurora, Colo., was elected national commander. Following his election the national commander appointed Erwin P. Bacon, Niagara Falls, as national inspector and George W. Nichols of Kingston as director on the Board for National RVA Legislation. Louis Vagnozzi of Niagara Falls was elected Zone 2 Councilman on National Council of Administration.

Two Hunters Fined For Breaking Rule

Two hunters from Forest Hills, L. I., were arrested in the Town of Shawangunk about 10 a. m. yesterday charged with violation of a state proclamation closing the woods.

Salvatore Ventimiglia, 53, and his son, Robert Rocco Ventimiglia, 17, of 102 1963rd Drive, were arrested by State Troopers E. P. Shannon and R. Burgess of the Ellenville station. They were arraigned before Justice of the Peace J. P. Lippincott of Wallkill and fined $12.50 each and released.

Governor Dewey ordered all hunting seasons suspended last Friday and both public and private woodlands throughout the state closed because of drouth conditions which threatened the state's tinder-dry woods.

Now you Know!
The answers to everyday insurance problems *
By HERMAN J. EATON

QUESTION: I've heard that in order to get a decent premium rate on burglary or theft insurance, the insured person must take all kinds of expensive precautions. If that is the case, it seems to me that it would be just as costly over a period of time as an actual loss by theft.
ANSWER: That is definitely not the case. The Insurance Companies expect only that insured people will take about the same precautions as if they had no insurance.
* If you'll address your own insurance questions to this office we'll try to give you the correct answers and there will be NO CHARGE OR OBLIGATION OF ANY KIND.
